PREFACE

TO THE SECOND EDITION.

THIS edition differs from the first chiefly in three particulars: The adoption of the Rōmaji Kai system of transliteration; the substitution of the term stem for root; and the addition of selections from the Shingaku Michi no Hanashi, with a translation and notes.

The substitution of the term stem for root calls for a word of comment. The objections to the names commonly applied to the several foundation forms of the verb are obvious. The negative base has in itself no negative force whatever: as is evident from the fact that it furnishes the foundation for the passive and causative voices. The conditional base is the base of the present conditional alone: and in verbs of the first conjugation it is identical with the imperative. Apparently no one of the four foundation forms is derived from any other one: all alike are bases upon which the verb is built: evidently therefore it is confusing to designate one of them as the root.

Professor Chamberlain, in his Handbook of Colloquial Japanese recently published, suggests two changes. Retaining the names negative and conditional base; he substitutes certain present for indicative, and indefinite form for root. The difficulty however remains: in each case the name exhibits only a single feature of the form: the terms are not logical definitions. The negative base is employed otherwise than as a foundation for negative forms: and a similar remark is true regarding the conditional base. The term certain present contains no hint of the marked use of the form as an adjective. The indefinite form is no more indefinite than the negative base: and its indefiniteness is not a more obvious characteristic than its constant employment in forming compounds with nouns, adjectives, and other verbs (e. g. kimono, inigurushii, buchikorosu)—the peculiarity immediately suggested by the old term root.

The fact is that the several foundation forms serve various purposes. One who wishes to name them may therefore take his choice. He may select some one marked feature and find in that the name, with however the certainty that it will prove more or less misleading. The only alternative is to content one's self with the simple numerical designations first, second, third, and fourth. To the writer the latter seems the better course: and he would have followed it, but for the desire to keep company with others. He has substituted stem for root because it is somewhat less misleading, and also because it has been adopted by Mr. Aston in the fourth edition of his Grammar of the Japanese Spoken Language.

The writer takes great pleasure in acknowledging his indebtedness to the labors of Dr. Hepburn and Messrs Satow and Aston. His cordial thanks are due to Mr. Sanjurō Ishimoto. Especially is he under obligations to the Rev. Kajinosuke Ibuka A.M., without whose patient work the book would probably never have been written.

ENGLISH-JAPANESE ETYMOLOGY.

CHAPTER I.—THE SYLLABARY.

Instead of an alphabet Japanese has a syllabary, two methods of arranging which obtain: the Iroha so called from the first syllables of a verse into which it has been cast; and the Go jū on or table of the Fifty Sounds. The latter is much the more scientific, and should be mastered as a key to inflection and agglutination.

As written in Japanese certain of the syllables represent more than one sound, the changes in the consonantal element being indicated by the addition of diacritical marks. These variations will be found exhibited in the Go jū on.

It will be observed that the Iroha contains forty-eight syllables and the Go jū on fifty. The n of the former however is an addition: and the yi ye and second u of the latter have been inserted to fill up the breaks in the series.

CHAPTER II.—THE VERB.

I.—INFLECTION.

The Japanese verb has four inflections which may be termed foundation forms, since upon them is reared its entire structure. These are usually called the negative base, the stem, the indicative present and the conditional base. In the spoken language there are two conjugations: and the following table exhibits the terminations of their respective foundation forms:—

	CONJ. I.		CONJ. II.
negative base ... ..	a	...	e	or i stem ... ..	i	...	e	or i indicative present ... ..	u	...	eru	or iru
conditional base ... ..	e	...	ere	or ire

Any one foundation form of a verb belonging to the first conj. being known, the remaining three can be readily obtained from the Go jū on.

Forms ending in i u or e preceded by a vowel are to be referred to No. 10 and not to No. 1. Kuru—to come, suru—to do and the honorific masu are irregular. A comparison of the following table with the Go jū on will make the above clear.

	NEG. BASE	STEM	IND. PRES.	COND. BASE.

	se or shi	shi	suru	sure	do
	mase	mashi	masu	masure

The construction of foundation forms in the second conjugation presents little difficulty, the neg. base and stem being alike, and the indic. pres. and cond. base being formed by the simple addition of ru and re.

8
9	kari	kari	kariru	karire	borrow
10	i	i	iru	ire	be Certain verbs of the first conjugation in which the indic. pres. ends in ru are sometimes mistaken for verbs of the second conjugation, because the ru happens to be preceded by e or i. If the student will commit the annexed list and make it his habit to learn verbs by the indic. pres. rather than by the stem, he will have little further trouble with inflection: most verbs in eru and iru excepting those in the list belonging to the second conjugation.

aseru	hurry	kiru	cut

II.—AGGLUTINATION.

Agglutination consists in the addition to bases of independent words or particles. In many cases however time and use have suffered only a fragment of the original suffix to remain.

SEC. I.—MOODS AND TENSES.

The moods and tenses of the Japanese verb are formed, for the most part, by agglutination.

1. In both conjugations, te, ta, tara, tarō, tari, tai and takunai, added to the stem, form the participle, indic. past, conditional past, probable past, frequentative, and the affirmative and negative of the desiderative adjective. In the second conjugation, yo or ro added to it forms the imperative.

2. In both conjugations, nai or nu, nakatta or nanda, nakattara or nandara, nakattarō or nandarō, nakattari or nandari, nakereba or neba, and nakute, nai de, dzu, dzu ni or dzu ni shite, added to the neg. base, form the neg. of the present, past, cond. past, prob. past, frequentative, cond. present and participle. In the first conjugation, u added to it and the a-u contracted into ō forms the future; in the second, yō added forms the future; and mai, the fut. neg.

3. In both conjugations, na added to the indic. present forms the imperative negative; in the first, mai added forms the fut. neg.

4. In both conjugations, ba added to the cond. base forms the cond. pres. In the first, the cond. base and the imperative are alike.

In the paradigms following, the lower forms are made up of the stem and the honorific verb masu; they are more courteous than the upper ones. Masu however being without a desid. adj. of its own, a polite form of that part of the verb is obtained by substituting for the simple adjective its adverbial form followed by gozaimasu (See VI. I. Sec. I.) In the paradigms the stem and its derivatives are presented before the negative base.

SEC. 2.—LETTER CHANGES.

When the suffixes te, ta, tara, tarō and tari, are added to stems of the first conjugation ending in ki, gi, ni, bi, mi, chi, ri, or i preceded by a vowel, the following letter changes take place :

kite	kita	kitara	etc.	become	ite	ita	itara	etc.
gite	gita	gitara	etc.	become	ide	ida	idara	etc.
nite	nita	nitara	etc.	} become	nde	nda	ndara	etc.

SEC. 3.—VOICES.

1. The passive:—Verbs of the first conjugation form the passive voice by adding reru to the neg. base, which might thus be called the voice base: those of the second, as well as suru and kuru, by adding rareru.

2. The potential:—The passive does service as a potential also. Most verbs of the first conjugation and a few of the second have besides a form in eru. In many cases, the two forms are used without any appreciable difference in meaning: when however they do differ, the passive is used of ability as regards law, duty, propriety, permission, willingness, feeling, of moral ability—may as opposed to can. The form in eru expresses absolute or physical ability—the strict can. Ureru e.g. means can sell, because some one wants to buy: urareru, because the party is at liberty to sell, or willing to do so at the price offered. Kikoeru and kikareru both signify can hear: kikoeru however means either that the sound is audible, or that the person has good ears; kikareru that the matter is no secret, or that one has time inclination etc. to listen. In like manner, while mieru declares that the object is visible or that the person has sight; mirareru asserts that there is no reason for concealment, or that one has time to look or no objection to doing so. (For examples see especially chap. II. v. sec. 6.)

3. The causative:—Verbs of the first conjugation form the causative voice by adding seru; those of the second, as also kuru, saseru to the neg. base. The causative of suru is saseru.

Verbs in these voices all belong to the second conj. in eru.

It being thought more polite to say that one is able to do a thing or that he causes a thing to be done than that he does it, the potential and causative voices are sometimes used instead of the active merely for the sake of courtesy.

III.—TRANSITIVE AND INTRANSITIVE FORMS.

SEC. I.

In English it often happens that the same verb is both transitive and intransitive: in Japanese such verbs have usually only the root in common. In some cases, the intransitive belongs to the first conjugation and the transitive to the second and vice versa; in others, the transitive is a species of causative. The following list comprises most in common use.

SEC. 2.

A considerable number of English passives are rendered into Japanese by intransitives. It should be borne in mind however that these intransitives are not in the passive voice and are not to accompany ni with the agent which requires instead the passive of the corresponding transitive.

The ship sank, but the sailors were saved. Fune wa shizunda ga sendō wa taus-katta.

The passengers were all saved by the sailors. Nori-kyaku wa mina sendō ni tasuke-rareta.

The dog barked and the children were frightened. Inu ga hoete kodomo ga odoroi-ta.

The children were frightened by the dog. Kodomo wa inu ni odorokasareta.

Kodomo wa inu ni odoroi-ta would mean the children were frightened at the dog. Ni makeru is another apparent exception, really signifying yield to rather than defeated by.

IV.—THE VERB TO BE.

There are three verbs in Japanese signifying to ‘be’—aru oru and iru. Excepting the future arumai, the negative forms of aru are not in use, their places being supplied by the moods and tenses of the negative adjective nai: (see VI. I. sec. I.) Oru and iru are synonyms, belonging respectively to the first and the second conjugation.

1. Oru and iru are employed in speaking of things with life when they are referred to as present at or in some particular place: excepting in connection with the Japanese equivalents of relative clauses. In all other cases aru and nai are used. Aru is constantly employed also in rendering 'have', even in speaking of animate objects.

2. Followed by a noun or pronoun as a predicate, to 'be' is rendered by de aru, often contracted da. Followed by an adjective as a predicate—see VI. sec. 1.

3. Equivalent to 'to become', 'to be' is rendered by naru.

Gozaru is more courteous than aru, and o ide nasaru or irassharu more so than oru or iru. De gozaimasu, contracted from de gozarimasu, is still further familiarly shortened into desu. The idiomatic English 'there' and 'it' have no equivalents in Japanese.

SEC. 5.—SHOULD, WOULD.

I. Affirmative:—

(a) Opinion, intention—future of the verb.

(b) Certainty, determination, explicit promise; as well as inquiry into the purpose of another—present.

2. Negative—negative present.

3. Preceded by 'if'—conditional past. (See also X. sec. 8.)

4. Accompanied by a conditional clause—future. If however the time of the clause be past (the 'would' becoming 'would have')—past or probable past, according to the degree of certainty to be expressed. No ni adds regret or censure.

5. Ought—see II. v. sec. 10.

6. Should 'like to'—see II. v. sec. 13.

I. (a).

I thought the jinriki would be here by this time. Mō jinriki ga kite iyō to omotta.

Did you think it would be so dear? Sonna ni takakarō to o omoi nas'tta ka?

If you had gone yesterday, you would have been in good time. Kinō irassh'ttara, raku ni o ma ni aimashita no ni.

SEC. 6.—CAN, COULD.

Can and could are rendered in two ways:—

1. By the potential forms of the verb.

2. By dekiru, which is coupled to the indicative present by koto. Dekiru is used with a noun also; as well as independently in the sense of can 'do'.

Can not is often expressed by the idiomatic phrase, wake ni wa ikanai added to the indicative present.

I.

- You can say anything in Japanese, Ii yō wo sae shitte ireba, Nihongo de if you only know how. nan de mo iemasu.
- I never can sleep when the fire bells Hanshō ga naru to dō shite mo nerare- ring. nai.

Can't you do it a little better?	Mō sukoshi yoku dekinai ka?
Can't you do this first?	Kore wo saki ni nasaru wake ni wa ikanai ka?
Is n't it possible for you to get permission from the government?	Seifu kara yurushi wo o uke nasaru wake ni wa ikimasenu ka?
I can not possibly take it, even if he offers it to me.	Rei wo sarete mo toru wake ni wa mairimaseuu.

SEC. 7.—MAY, MIGHT.

I. Possibility, 'perhaps':—

- (a) Accompanying a present, future, or the auxiliary 'have not'—ka mo shirenai following the present.
- (b) Accompanying the past (including 'might not have been')—ka mo shirenai following the past.
- (c) Bare possibility may be expressed by mono de mo nai following the negative future.

2. Ability—potential or dekiru.

3. Liberty, permission—mo yoi (contracted ii) following the participle.

I. (a).

May be there are some mosquitoes in the net.	Kaya no naka ni ka ga iru ka mo shirenai.
May be the steamer will be in tomorrow.	Ashita wa jōkisen ga tsuku ka mo shirenai.

- I told Ginjirō he might go to Asakusa this afternoon. Ginjinrō ni kyō hirusugi Asakusa ye itte mo ii to imashita.

SEC. 8.—LET, MAKE, HAVE, GET.

I. These words in the sense of allow, constrain, require, cause, are all rendered by the causative voice. Certain transitives however having a causative force of their own, suffice of themselves to express 'let.'

Get may also be rendered by the participle and morau—a form which is more courteous than the causative, and which must be employed when the idea of favor is to be expressed. It does not however always and necessarily imply favor. (Comp. IV. III. sec. 2).

2. Imperative:—

(a) Let us—future followed by de wa nai ka?

(b) Don't let may be rendered by the negative present followed by yō ni shite.

I.

Matsu has let the lamp smoke.

Matsu wa rampu wo iburaseta.

Shall I let these coolies take the box?

So the cord was a little short.	Himo wa sukoshi mijikakatta sō desu.

VI.—THE INFINITIVE.

There being no infinitive in Japanese, the English infinitive must be rendered differently according to circumstances :—

1. As the subject or object of another verb—indicative present and no (koto).

2. Signifying for the purpose of—stem and ni.

3. Signifying with the intention of—future and to omotte.

4. Following the means, instrument, agent—indicative present and ni.

5. Equivalent to the verbal noun preceded by 'for' or 'in'—indicative present and no ni.

6. Equivalent to 'if' and accompanied by 'it will' or 'it would'—participle and wa. The case however must be a real one and not a mere hypothesis.

7. Following verbs of telling, requesting, promising, advising, etc.—to following the direct narration or yō ni following the indicative present.

I.

- Shall I tell the tailor to call on you to get his pay? Dai wo itadaki ni agaru yō ni shitateya ni mōshimashō ka?

VII.—PASSIVE CONSTRUCTIONS.

1. The passive voice—see II. II. sec. 3.
2. Intransitives employed to render English passives—see II. III. sec. 2.

3. It may be said in general that the use of the passive voice is much wider in English than in Japanese: many constructions therefore which in English are passive must be rendered into Japanese at a sacrifice of form:—

- (a) When an active construction with 'they' might be substituted for the passive one, the sentence is usually translated accordingly.
- (b) When the English sentence is explanatory, the verb becomes active in Japanese and is used as an adjective to qualify a no (mono) following.
- (c) When the clause containing the passive is the object of another verb, its verb assumes the active form and is followed by no (tokoro); thus instead of saying 'I saw such a thing done,' a Japanese would say 'I saw the act of doing such a thing.'
- (d) Am, is, are, was and were, followed by the passive participle and expressing past action still continuing in effect, are rendered by the participle and aru, if the Japanese verb be a transitive; if it be an intransitive, oru or iru takes the place of aru.
- (e) The presence of certain ideas may determine the mode of translation: Becoming, coming to pass, resulting in, change, etc., are expressed by the stem of the verb and ni naru, or by the indicative present and yō ni naru. Receiving is rendered by ukeru and morau.

I.

- I was invited, but I had another engagement and declined. Manekareta kere domo hoka ni yakusoku shita koto ga atte kotowarimashita.
- When Yoshida returns, will he be sent as minister to England? Yoshida ga kaettara, Eikoku ye kōshi ni yarareru darō ka?

I used to be taught by an old man from Nagoya.	Meto wa Nagoya kara kita rōjin ni oshiete moratta.

CHAPTER III.—THE NOUN.

SEC. I.

Besides being supplied with true nouns, such as kaze—wind, chikara—strength, hito—a person, Japanese makes use of many verbal stems to serve as nouns; as negai—request, osore—fear.

SEC. 2.—ABSTRACT NOUNS.

1. Abstract nouns are frequently formed by adding koto to an adjective or to the present or past of the verb; as—

hayai koto	rapidity	ki wo tsukeru	} attention
kanashii koto	affliction	koto
katai koto	hardness	komaru koto	perplexity
shibui koto	astringency	on wo shiranai	} ingratitude
urusai koto	annoyance	koto
yoi koto	goodness	tatsu koto	abstinence
komaka na koto	accuracy	eru koto	acquisition
rippa na koto	beauty	shikkari shita	} firmness
dekinai koto	impossibility	koto
		sugureta koto	excellence

2. Many abstract nouns are formed by adding sa to adjective stems; as takasa—height, katasa—hardness, hayasa—speed. Nouns of the first class express simply quality, those of this class express also degree; fukai koto—depth, fukasa—the depth of.

SEC. 3.—CONCRETE NOUNS.

Many concrete nouns, names both of persons and things, are formed by adding mono to nouns adjectives and verbal stems ; as—

adzukari mono	deposit	mazari mono	mixture
bake mono	ghost	nokori mono	leavings
deki mono *	abscess	nui mono	sewing
hiyōri mono	hypocrite	okuri mono	gift
inaka mono	rustic	oseji mono	flatterer
ire mono	vessel	tabe mono	food
kai mono	purchase	umai mono	dainty
ki mono	clothing	yaki mono	pottery

SEC. 4.—NAMES OF TRADES.

The names of most of the trades are formed by adding ya to the name of the article dealt in ; as okeya—a cooper, honya—a bookseller, toriya—a bird-fancier.

SEC. 5.—COMPOUND NOUNS.

Compound nouns abound ; and are formed either by the union of two nouns or verbal stems, or by uniting a verb or the stem of a verb or of an adjective to a noun ; as—

aka-gane	copper	ji-biki	dictionary
cha-ire	tea caddy	onna-gami	goddess
hari-gane	wire	te-oke	pail
hiki-dashi	drawer	te-suri	hand rail
hiki-shio	ebb tide	yake-ishi	lava
iku-saki	destination	yane-ita	shingle

SEC. 6.—GENDER.

Distinction in sex is sometimes expressed as in English by the use of different words; as otoko, onna—man, woman; chichi, haha—father, mother; ototsan, okkasan—papa, mamma; musuko, musume—boy, girl. Sometimes it is expressed by prefixing o or me, which correspond to 'he' and 'she' in such words as he-goat; as o shika, me jika—buck, doe; on dori, men dori—cock, hen. Properly speaking however Japanese nouns are without gender, and in most cases even sex is not indicated.

SEC. 7.—NUMBER.

If necessary the plural can be formed by suffixing domo, ra, tachi or gata. This however is usually done only when ambiguity would otherwise arise. Tachi and gata, being more courteous than domo or ra, are commonly employed of persons that should be referred to with more or less of respect.

SEC. 8.—CASE.

Case is expressed by means of the postpositions.

CHAPTER IV.—THE PRONOUN.

I.—PERSONALS AND POSSESSIVES.

I, me	watakushi (contracted watashi ).
we, us	watakushidomo .
you	sing. omae, omae san, anata .
	pl. omae { tachi, gata, omae san { tachi, gata, anatagata .
he, him	are, ano hito, ano o { hito. kata.
she, her	are, ano { hito, onna, ano o { hito. kata.
it	sore .
they, them	arera, ano hito { tachi, ra, ano o katagata .

Omae san is more polite than omae; and anata, which is generally used in addressing equals and superiors, still more so; the same is true also of ano hito and ano o kata, as compared with are.

Students among themselves, frequently use boku for 'I' and kimi for 'you.' A scholar is sensei; a master, danna or danna san. Tōnin means 'he' or 'she' of one already named. 'It,' with verbs of 'saying' and 'doing,' is rendered by sō.

It may be said in general that the personal pronouns are seldom used excepting when emphasis is to be expressed, or when ambiguity would result from their absence. They are often employed once at the beginning of a conversation or sentence and then dropped. It is also true that some speakers use them more freely than others.

Possessive pronouns are formed by adding no to the personals; as watakushi no—my, mine. The adjective form of sore however is sono, not sore no; and it may mean 'his' or 'your' as well as 'its.'

I brought the box and Denjirō brought the bundle. Watakushi wa hako wo motte kita shi Denjirō wa tsutsumi wo motte kimashita.

This is different from what I ordered. Kare wa watakushi ga atsuracta no to chigaimasu.

He offered me a hundred dollars, but I would n't take it. Watakushi ni hyaku en yarō to itta ga ukenakatta.

The ladies rode in kagos, but we walked. Fujingata wa kago ni notta ga watakushidomo wa arukimashita.

Some of us would like to study history. Watakushidomo no uchi ni rekishi wo keiko shitai mono mo gozaimasu.

Everything I say seems to offend you. Watashi no iu koto wa nani mo ka mo o ki ni sakarau yō de gozaimasu.

Did n't some one bring a parcel for me just now? Ima dare ka watakushi no tokoro ye tsutsumi wo motte kita de wa nai ka?

I think you will find a few screws in my tool-chest. Watakushi no dōgu-bako ni neji ga ni san bon haitte imashō.

Was it you that left the door open? Akepanashi ni shita no wa omae ka?

You are a little particular.	Anata wa sukoshi ko-muzukashii hito de gozaimasu.
There was a man here an hour or two ago inquiring for you.	Senkoku anata wo tadzunete kita hito ga atta.
You have holes in both your socks.	Omae no tabi ni wa ryōhō ni ana ga aite iru.
That hairpin of yours is very stylish.	Anata no kanzashi wa taisō iki desu ne.
These are not yours, are they?	Kore wa anata no de wa gozaimasumai, na?
He will probably choose this color.	Are wa ōkata kono iro wo toru darō.
He is a man of ability, but he is lacking in energy.	Are wa saishi da ga kiryoku ni tobo-shii hito da.
Please don't tell him anything.	Are ni nani mo kikasenai de kudasai.
I gave him all the money I had.	Ano hito ni ari kiri kane wo yatte shimatta.
I wish I had some of his money.	Ano hito no motte iru kane ga sukoshi hoshii mon' da.
What paper did it come out in?	Sore wa nani shimbun ni demashita ka?
How many does it hold?	Sore ni ikutsu hairimasu ka?
I don't believe there is one like it in Tōkyō.	Sore to onaji yō na no wa Tōkyō ni gozaimasumai.
As you are about it, wash this too.	Sono tsuide ni kore mo aratte o kure.
There was a fellow named Benkei among his retainers.	Sono kerai ni Benkei to iu mono ga atta.
Did he say it before people?	Hito no mae de sō iimashita ka?
I'll do it as soon as I can.	Deki shidai ni sō itashimashō.

II.—COMPOUND PERSONALS.

Pronouns followed by 'self' are rendered according to the shade of meaning to be expressed:—

1. Simply emphatic—the personal pronoun itself.

2. One's self as well as another—the personal pronoun and mo yahari; yahari however is often understood.

3. One's self as distinguished from others—jibun.

4. By one's self, alone—hitori de.

5. Of itself, spontaneously—shizen ni.

Jibun and hitori de are sometimes combined.

I.

I'll lend it to you just as soon as I have finished reading it myself. Watakushi ga yonde shimattara sugu ni o kashi mōshimashō.

2.

I have tripped on that sill two or three times myself. Watakushi mo yahari ano shikii ni wa ni san do ketsumazuita koto ga aru.

3.

He has a pretty good opinion of himself. Jibun wa yohodo dekiru tsumori de iru.

You can not do it yourself either. Jibun mo yahari dekinai kuse ni.

Go yourself. Jibun de itte o ide.

Had n't you better go and see him about it yourself? Go jibun de irassh'tte go danji nas'tta hō ga ii ja arimasenu ka?

Are you going to use it yourself? Go jibun de o tsukai nasaru ka?

You ought to be able to answer that yourself. Jibun de kotae ga deki sō na mon' da.

I doubt whether you can do it yourself. O hitori de wa o muzukashiū gozai-mashō.

5.

III.—HONORIFICS.

As stated above, it is a marked characteristic of Japanese to avoid the use of personal and possessive pronouns; especially is this the case in addressing equals or superiors and in speaking of those who should be mentioned with respect. In such instances, the absence of the pronouns is generally made good by the presence of what usually go under the name of honorifics.

SEC. I.—O AND Go.

The honorific particles o and go are prefixed to—

1. Nouns.

2. Verbs:—

(a) When the person addressed or referred to is the agent in the action the verb assumes the stem form (excepting those verbs made up of a noun and suru, in which the suru become nasaru) and is followed by nasaru or ni naru. Sometimes de gozarimasu takes the place of nasaru or ni naru, the stem in this case becoming a noun.

(b) When the person addressed or referred to is the object either direct or indirect of the speaker's action, mōsu is employed instead of nasaru. Verbs made up of a noun and itasu (suru) or ni naru however require no change beyond prefixing the honorific.

3. Adjectives and Adverbs:—In sentences addressed to equals or superiors the Japanese often prefix o to adjectives and adverbs, even where the English idiom drops the pronoun.

As a rule o precedes Japanese words and go Chinese; o rusu, o taku and go mottomo however are familiar examples of exceptions.

Sama is sometimes appended to nouns; and instances occur where pronouns are used in addition to o and go.

Nearly all the examples in this section will be found in Satow's Kuwa Hen. Most of them are common expressions, some of which are not easily rendered literally.

I.

Where is your house, Sir?

Remember me to your family.

What is your opinion?

By your favor.

Are you at leisure?

Is he at home?

He is out.

I'm sorry for you.

I've kept you waiting.

O taku wa doko de gozaimasu ka?

O taku ye yoroshiü (osshatte kudasai).

O mikomi wa dö de gozaimasu?

O hima de gozaimasu ka?

O uchi desu ka?

O rusu de gozaimasu.

O kinodoku sama (de gozaimasu).

O machidö sama (de gozaimasu).

What is your answer?

What is your business?

That is quite a misapprehension on your part.

Thanks, you are very kind, but—

As you know.

You must be very anxious.

You are right.

Go hentö wa dö desu?

Nani go yö de gozaimasu ka?

Sore wa öki ni go ryöken-chigai de gozaimasu.

 (or writing to) you.
 I will let you know. Go sata itashimashō.
 I am very much obliged to you. Ōki ni o sewa ni narimashita.

3.

I congratulate you. O medetō gozaimasu.
 I am afraid I have been boring you. Sazo o yakamashiū gozaimashitarō.
 It is (what you wish done) no trouble O yasui go yō de gozaimasu.
 at all.
 Is n't it too cold for you here? Koko wa amari o samū gozaimasenū ka?
 It is very cheap. Makoto ni o yasū gozaimasu.

SEC. 2.—HONORIFIC VERBS.

1. Used independently:—There are certain verbs that are used in speaking of the actions of those who are either really or by courtesy inferiors, and others that are employed when one comes to mention the actions of a superior. Both of these classes, especially in conversation between equals or with superiors, commonly dispense with the personal pronouns and without ambiguity.

The following list comprises most in daily use. Those in parentheses are only relatively humble not absolutely so; humble as compared with those in the second column. Mairu however is seldom employed in the second person even when inferiors are addressed: it is used in the first person, and also in the third both in speaking of equals to equals and of inferiors to inferiors: in speaking to inferiors of their own actions, iku and kuru are the proper words to employ. This rule regarding mairu holds good of mōsu also, iu commonly taking its place in the second person. In familiar conversation with one another, students often use iu instead of ossharu. When an absolutely humble word is wanted, itadaku is substituted for taberu.

Kudasaru and itadaku are much more courteous than kureru and morau. Kureru is sometimes employed even of one's own action towards an inferior.

A sentence containing morau is often the best way of rendering an English sentence containing to 'give'; and chōdai is constantly used where we should say, 'please give me.' In the same way, 'please lend me' is commonly expressed by haishaku.

 Shall I open it and show it to you? Akete o me ni kakemashē ka?
 May I look at your watch-chain a minute? O tokei no kusari wo chotto haiken.

2. Used as auxiliaries:—Besides being used independently, ageru, morau, itadaku, kureru and kudasaru are also used in connection with other verbs as auxiliaries. In such cases, ageru expresses the idea that the inferior performs the action for the superior; kudasaru and kureru, vice versa; morau and itadaku, that one gets an action performed for him by another. (Comp. IX. sec. 10.)

Kudasaru is much more courteous than kureru; o kure is frequently employed in civil commands. The same is true of itadaku as compared with morau, the latter being often used where the service is paid for.

In all cases politeness requires equals to be regarded as superiors.

Kudasaru and kureru, especially in the imperative, are fair renderings of 'please.'

Kudasaru may follow the stem preceded by o; with this exception all five verbs succeed the participle. Ageru, morau and itadaku may be accompanied by o and mōsu; as o morai mōsu.

Shall I do it for you? Sō shite agemashō ka?
 I'll buy it for you on my way home. Kaeri gake ni katte kite agemashō.
 He did every thing for me that I asked him to. Tanonda koto wo mina shite kuremashita.
 Isuke got one (a ticket) for me from a friend of his. Isuke ga ichi mai tomodachi kara moratte kuremashita.

 IV.—RELATIVES.

Japanese has no relative pronouns. Relative clauses are placed before what in English is the antecedent, which they qualify as adjectives.

When the antecedent is 'it,' 'that,' 'one,' or when it is not expressed (in clauses with 'what'), it is rendered by no (mono or koto, as the case may be).

It will be observed that the prepositions of relative clauses generally drop out in translation.

It was not I; that said it.	Itta no wa watakushi de wa arimasenu.
Who was that that you bowed to just now?	Ima o jigi wo nas'tta no wa dare desu ka?
Who was that that bowed to you just now?	Ima o jigi wo shita no wa dare desu ka?

- He is an official I dined with yesterday. Are wa kinō issho ni shokuji wo shita yakunin da.
- Is the man you spoke to me about recently still alive? Kono aida o hanashi no hito wa mada ikite orimasu ka?

- Is this the carpenter you intend to Yakujō wo nasaru tsumori no daiku wa make the contract with? kono hito desu ka?
- Where does that carpenter that you Ando o de-iri no daiku wa doko ni generally have live? orimasu ka?

V.—INTERROGATIVES.

1. Who—dare, (more courteous) donata: whose—dare no, donata no.
2. Which:—
  - (a) Substantive form :
    - Of two—dochira.
    - Of any number (usually more than two)—dore.
  - (b) Adjective form :
    - Of two—dochira no.
    - Of any number (usually more than two)—dono.
3. What:—
  - (a) Substantive form—nani; dō or ikaga.
  - (b) Adjective form—nani, nan no; dō iu.

Dō and ikaga (how) are used in inquiries regarding intention, opinion, et cetera.

Nani expects a direct categorical answer; dō iu is rather 'What sort of,' and looks for explanation, description, qualification; a distinction however not rigidly observed. The i in nani is often elided.

In inquiries for the name of a thing nan to iu is employed. With verbs of 'saying' nan to may take the place of nani 'Whose,' 'which' and 'what,' in the sense of 'belonging to what place or premises,' are rendered by doko (where) no.

CHAPTER V.—PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES.

There is an important class of words which have been variously classified by different English grammarians. Most of them are at times used by themselves and at times to qualify other words; a recent author has accordingly grouped them together under the term pronominal adjectives. The classification is open to criticism; such an arrangement however suits the purpose of the present writer better than any other.

SEC. I.—THIS, THAT, SUCH.

1. This, these :—

(a) Pronominal form—kore.

(b) Adjective form—kono.

2. That, those :—

(a) Pronominal form—sore ; are.

(b) Adjective form—sono ; ano.

3. Such :—

(a) Like this—konna, kō iu, kono yō na, kō iu yō na.

(b) Like that { sonna, sō iu, sono yō na, sō iu yō na.
anna, aa iu, ano yō na, aa iu yō na.

Sore and sono are used of things near to or connected with the person addressed, of subjects therefore which are before his mind: accordingly they are the proper rendering of 'that' referring to a matter just mentioned. This also explains why sore means 'it.'

Are and ano are used of things more or less remote from the speaker and hearer; they are therefore employed in introducing a subject.

The distinction between sore and are holds good between sonna and anna.

With verbs of 'saying,' 'this' is rendered by kō and 'that' by sō. In the sense of 'to-day,' 'this' is rendered by kyō or konnichi.

When used to specify and emphasize a particular point or feature ('just there'), soko takes the place of sore.

Followed by an adjective, konna, sonna and anna become konna ni, sonna ni and anna ni.

I. (a).

SEC. 2.—EITHER, NEITHER, BOTH.

1. Either:—

(a) One—dochira kā.

(b) One or the other no matter which—dochira de mo.

(c) Both—dochira mo.

2. Neither (also either with the negative)—dochira mo and the negative.

3. Both—dochira mo, ryōhō, ryōnin, futari.

Dochira and ryōhō are sometimes followed by no and precede their nouns; usually however they come after them and alone. To mo adds emphasis to ryōhō and futari. Ryōnin and futari are used only of persons. In the case of an action dō de mo takes the place of dochira de mo.

I. (a).

- Is either of those men-of-war an iron-clad? Ano gunkan wa dochira ka kōtessen desu ka?
- Is either of these pencils yours? Kono ni hon no empitsu no uchi dochira ka anata no de gozaimasu ka?
- Will either of these suit you? Kono uchi dochira ka o ki ni irimasu ka?

I. (b).

Have you looked in both pockets (foreign clothes)?	Kakushi wo ryōhō (do- chira mo) } sagashima- shita ka? Ryōhō no kakushi wo }

SEC. 3.—EACH.

1. Every one individually—meimei, tenden ni.

2. Apiece—zutsu.

Meimei and tenden ni follow the noun which they partition. Meimei is used only of persons.

Zutsu follows the number or amount distributed. When 'each' is used pronominally, hitori, mina and (in the case of two things) dochira mo are inserted to prevent ambiguity. Sometimes these words are inserted when 'each' is an adjective.

I.

Each student lives by himself.	Shosei wa meimei betsubetsu ni sunde imasu.
Each soldier had on a different uniform.	Heitai wa meimei kawatta fuku wo kite orimashita.
Each one can do as he likes.	Meimei katte shidai ni dekimasu.
Each child recited in turn.	Kodomo wa tenden ni anshō itashimashita.
Each church chooses its own pastor.	Kyōkwai wa tenden ni bokushi wo erabimasu.
Each one came up wagging his tail, and looking very proud.	Tenden ni hokori-gao ni shippo wo futte kimashita.

2.

I'll take three of each sort.	Hito iro mitsu zutsu ni shiyō.
Give a little to each child.	Kodomo ni sukoshi zutsu o yan (yari) nasai.
There are two persons in each of those jinrikis.	Ano jinriki ni wa hito ga futari zutsu notte iru.
Put a spoonful of tea in each of these cups.	Kono chawan ye hito saji zutsu cha wo irete o kure.
Put a two cent stamp on each of those letters and post them.	Sono tegami ye ni sen no kitte wo ichi mai zutsu haite dashite o kure.
You must put three hinges on each door.	Ichi mai goto ni chō-tsugai wo mitsu zutsu tsukenakereba ikenai.
Give two or three of each sort to each.	Hitori ni hito iro futatsu ka mitsu zutsu o yan nasai.
You had better give each of them a bu or two apiece.	Mina ni ichi bu ka ni bu zutsu mo yaru ga ii.
Suppose you take a little of each (two kinds of paint) and mix them.	Dochira mo sukoshi zutsu wakete mazete goran.

- There are a few of each (two things) in both drawers. Dochira mo ryōhō no hikidashi ni sukoshi zutsu haitte imasu.

SEC. 6.—EVERY.

1. Persons:—

- (a) Every body, people generally—dare mo.
 (b) Every body no matter who, any body whatever—dare de mo.
 (c) Every one of a particular group—mina, dare mo ka mo.

2. Things:—

- (a) Every thing, things generally—nani mo, nani mo ka mo.
 (b) Every thing no matter what, any thing whatever—nan de mo.

Nani mo ka mo is more emphatic than nani mo, and is in common use. Dare mo ka mo and dore mo ka mo may be employed in some cases in the sense of every individual one: usually however they give way to mina (all), and unless the individualization is clear and strong they must do so.

I. (a).

- Every body expected war. Dare mo ikusa ga okoru darō to omotta.
- Nowadays every body rides in jinrikis. Ima de wa dare mo jinriki ni noru.
- Every body has to go to the mountains in summer. Dare mo natsu ni naru to yama ye ikanakereba narimasenu.
- One ought to be polite to every body. Dare ni taishite mo teinei ni su beki hazu no mono da.

I. (b).

- Nowadays every body can go up Fujisan (formerly women could not). Ima de wa dare de mo Fujisan ye noiorareru.
- Does every convict (no matter who he is) have to wear red clothes? Chōeki-nin wa dare de mo akai kimono wo kinakereba narimasenu ka?

I. (c).

- Please make every one sit down. Dōzo mina suwarasete kudasai.
- When I opened the door, every one said, you must not come in yet. To wo aketara, mina ga mada ikenai to itta.
- The weather was disagreeable, and every one took cold. Kokoromochi no warui tenki de mina kaze wo hiita.
- Every one of the children has the measles. Uchi no kodomo wa dare mo ka mo (mina) hashika da.

2. (a).

- Some people think that every thing came into existence of itself. Aru hito wa nani mo ka mo shizen ni dekita yō ni omou.
- It seems to me you always find fault with every thing. Anata wa itsu de mo nani mo ka mo toganete o ide nasaru yō desu.
- Have you enough of every thing to last till you get to Niigata? Niigata ye tsuku made tsuzuku hodo nani mo arimasu ka?
- Is every thing ready now? Mō nani mo shitaku ga ii ka?

2. (b).

You seem to think you know every thing.	Nan de mo shitte o ide nasaru yō desu.

I suppose they teach pretty much every thing at the University	Daigaku de wa taitei nan de mo oshieru darō.
That baby wants every thing he sees.	Ano akambo wa miru mono wo nan de mo hoshigaru.
You must n't give the baby every thing he wants.	Akambo ga hoshigaru mono wo yatarani yatcha ikenai.

This sentence being negative nan de mo can not be used, and hence the employment of yatarani (indiscriminately): nani mo would mean, you must n't give him 'any thing.'

2. (c).

Leave every thing as it is.	Mina sono mama ni shite o oki.
Every thing in the house was burnt up.	Uchi no mono ga mina yakete shimatta.
Every thing we left in the house was saved.	Kaette dasanai mono wa mina tasukatta.
Have you done every thing as I told you?	Mina itta tōri ni shimashita ka?
Tell him to paint every one differently.	Mina betsu no iro ni nure to itte o kure.
Every one of these bottles is broken.	Kono tokkuri wa dore mo ka mo (mina) kowarete iru.
Every single one is broken in two.	Dore mo ka mo (mina) futatsu ni natte iru.

SEC. 7.—NONE, NO.

1. Nobody—dare mo with the negative.
2. Nothing—nani mo with the negative.
3. No one of a particular group—dore mo with the negative.
4. No :—

(a) Not any—negative of the verb.

(b) Emphatic, none at all, not a single one—sukoshi mo, hitotsu mo, et cetera, with the negative.

5. No more—mō with the negative.

I.

They looked at one another, but nobody said a word.	Tagai ni kao wo mi-awaseta ga dare mo ichigon mo iwanakatta.

SEC. 14.—MUCH.

1. In affirmative sentences—tanto.
2. In negative sentences—amari with the negative.
3. Too much—amari, sugiru, yokei.
4. So much—sonna ni.
5. How much:—
  - (a) Of price—ikura, nani hodo, nambo.
  - (b) Of quantity—nani hodo, ika hodo.
  - (c) About how much—dono kurai.

Amari and sugiru qualify the verb, amari preceding it and sugiru following its stem (comp. VII. IV. sec. 7.): yokei qualifies the noun, requiring the addition of na or no when it precedes; it is also employed independently. The construction of some sentences however permits any one of the three to be employed without a material difference in the sense.

I.

- Is there much money in that box? Ano hako no naka ni tanto kane ga haitte iru ka?
 Was much of the rice burnt up by the drought last year? Kyōnen wa hidere de ine ga tanto kare mashita ka?

CHAPTER VI.—THE ADJECTIVE.

I.—CLASSES.

Japanese words rendering English adjectives may be divided into four classes:—True adjectives, adjectives in na and no, presents and preterites, and uninflected words such as mina and sutsu.

SEC. I.—THE TRUE ADJECTIVE.

All Japanese adjectives are wanting in gender number and case: the true adjective however like the verb has a foundation form, from which moods, tenses and the true adverb are obtained by inflection and agglutination.

PARADIGM OF THE TRUE ADJECTIVE.

stem	taka	high adjective	takai	high or is high adverb	takaku	high participle	takakute	being high past	takakatta	was high probable past	takakattarō	probably was high conditional past	takakattara	{ if or when was or should be high frequentative	takakattari	being high future	takakarō	will be high conditional present	takakereba	if is or will be high

AMIABLE.	BAD.	HEAVY.
yasashi	waru	omo
yasashii	warui	omoi
yasashiku	waruku	omoku
yasashikute	warukute	omokute
yasashikatta	warukatta	omokatta
yasashikattarō	warukattarō	omokattarō
yasashikattara	warukattara	omokattara
yasashikattari	warukattari	omokattari
yasashikarō	warukarō	omokarō
yasashikereba	warukereba	omokereba

It will be observed that one form serves both as an attributive and a predicate. Accordingly, 'this is a high mountain' would be rendered, kore wa takai yama da; and 'this mountain is high,' kono yama wa takai. When employed as a predicate however two other forms are also in use: the adjective may be followed by no da, or what is more courteous the adverb may be substituted accompanied by arimasu or gozaimasu, in which case aku and oku are frequently contracted into ō, iku into iū, and uku into ū; as 'this mountain is high' kono yama wa takai no da or kono yama wa takō gozaimasu.

Instead of the future, the present is often used followed by the future of de aru; as takai deshō

Negative forms of the true adjective are obtained by adding the negative adjective nai to the adverb used as a base.

PARADIGM OF NEGATIVE FORMS.

yoku
yokunai	not good
yokunaku	not well
yokunakute	not being good
yokunakatta	was not good
yokunakattarō	probably was not good
yokunakattara	if or when was not or should not be good
yokunakattari	not being good
yokunakarō	will not be good
yokunakereba	if is not or will not be good

True adjectives frequently unite with other words forming compound adjectives :—

1. Without any connecting word ; as—

hodo-yoi	moderate		kawari-yasui	inconstant
kokoro-yasui	intimate		nasake-nai	heartless
wakari-yasui	simple		yondokoro-nai	unavoidable

2. An important class is formed by uniting adjectives to nouns (and verbal stems) by no, which in the predicate becomes ga; as yama no ōi—hilly, yama ga ōi—‘is’ hilly. It will be observed that particular words enter into these compounds with great frequency; as ōi, yoi, warui; and also that the English prefixes and suffixes ‘in’ ‘un’ and ‘less’ are commonly rendered by warui or the negative adjective nai; as—

benri no yoi	convenient	hyōban no wa-	} disreputable
benzetsu no yoi	eloquent	ru
hyōban no yoi	reputable	iji no warui	ill-natured
kaori no yoi	fragrant	katte no warui	} incommodi- ous
kinari no yoi	systematic
kokoromochi no	} comfortable	konare no warui	indigestible
yoi			sokoi no warui
kon no yoi	energetic	sube no warui	rough
motenashi no	} hospitable	ekōji no warui	pig-headed
yoi			yōjin no warui
omoi-kiri no yoi	resolute
sasshi no yoi	considerate	hito no ōi	populous
sasoku no yoi	self-possessed	hito-jini no ōi	sanguinary
shiwase no yoi	fortunate	ishi no ōi	stony
tashinami no	} temperate	kazu no ōi	numerous
yoi			kaze no ōi
	} convenient (of arrange- ments)	imi no fukai	expressive
tsugō no yoi			naka no fukai
ure no yoi	saleable	utaguri no fu-	} suspicious
		kai
wakari no yoi	sensible	enryō no fukai	scrupulous
wari no yoi	lucrative	yoku no fukai	covetous
yōjin no yoi	cautious
		ki no ōkii	generous
benri no warui	inconvenient	ki no mijikai	} quick-tem- pered
hara no warui	bad-hearted

ki no hayai	excitable	katachi no nai	immaterial
me no hayai	sharp-sighted	machigai no nai	correct
me no takai	{ same(mental-ly)	magai no nai	genuine
		rui no nai	incomparable
sei no takai	tall	sasshi no nai	inconsiderate
sei no hikui	short	shikata no nai	hopeless
		soko no nai	bottomless
aji no nai	flavorless	tameshi no nai	{ unprecedented-ed
chikara no nai	powerless
hanashi no nai	taciturn	tamochi no nai	perishable
hin no nai	undignified	taema no nai	incessant
ubun no nai	faultless	tsumi no nai	innocent
jibun-gatte no nai	{ unselfish	utagai no nai	indubitable
			watakushi no nai
jōai no nai	heartless
kagen no nai	intemperate	eko-hiiki no nai	impartial
kagiri no nai	boundless

3. A number of compound adjectives are found ending in de nai or mo nai. In the predicate, mo usually becomes ga or wa; de remains unchanged; as—

shōjiki de nai	dishonest	tawai mo nai	frivolous
tashika de nai	uncertain	wake mo nai	simple
arisō mo nai	unlikely	zōsa mo nai	easy
kono ue mo nai	{ supreme, con- summate

SEC. 2.—ADJECTIVES IN na AND no.

A large number of uninflected words, for the most part nouns and many of them Chinese, are made to serve as adjectives by the addition of na or no, which in the predicate become de aru; as 'is this very fertile land?'—kore wa yohodo yutaka na jimen de gosaimasu ka? 'the land was not very fertile'—sono jimen wa amari yutaka de gosaimasenu de shita. Where a true adjective would assume the participial form, de aru becomes de; as 'the path up Fujisan is steep and narrow'—Fujisan ye noboru michi wa kensō de haba ga semai.

A few specimens of the class follow:—

arisō na	probable	rippa na	splendid
chūgi na	loyal	shizuka na	quiet
fushin na	doubtful	kin no	golden
ikita yō na	lifelike	makka no	crimson
kenson na	humble	makoto no	true
kenyaku na	economical	mukashi no	ancient
kirei na	pretty	shinu hodo no	fatal
kōman na	proud	shita no	lower
muri na	unreasonable	sorezore no	respective
nasasō na	improbable	ue no	upper
nōben na	eloquent	eikyū no	eternal

SEC. 3.—PRESENTS AND PRETERITES.

It is a marked peculiarity of Japanese that the present and preterite of any verb may be used to qualify a noun, a peculiarity which is constantly exemplified in relative clauses. Accordingly many English adjectives and participles used as adjectives find their equivalents in verbs in these tenses. In some instances the verb is affirmative, in some negative; and in some it is only the last word of a combination.

Two points should be borne in mind when adjectives of this class are to be used in the predicate: first, preterites must be exchanged for participles followed by iru or oru; secondly, in a combination made up of either a present or a preterite joined to a preceding noun by no, the connecting no becomes ga; as open—aita, 'is' open—aite iru; drunken—sake ni yotta, 'is' drunk—sake ni yotte iru; guilty—tsumi no aru, 'is' guilty—tsumi ga aru; bloody—chi no tsuita, 'is' bloody—chi ga tsuite iru.

Many of the English adjectives endings in 'ble' are rendered by intransitives or potentials.

PRESENTS.

benkyō suru	diligent	kikoeru	audible
dekiru	possible	motte ikeru	portable

II.—COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES (AND ADVERBS).

SEC. I.—THE COMPARATIVE DEGREE.

1. In a greater degree—motto.

2. Two different things being compared:—

(a) When 'than' is expressed—yori and the positive.(b) When 'than' is not expressed—hō added to the one possessing the quality in the greater degree.3. Two comparatives, the increase in one being proportioned to that in the other (the more—the more)—hodo following the former.Instead of motto (more), the Japanese often use mō sukoshi (a little more).

For 'more' and 'more than' signifying not greater in degree, but a greater quantity or greater number of—see V. sec. 16. and X. sec. 13.

I.

Had n't you better tie that parcel tighter? *Sono tsutsumi wo motto kataku shibaru ga ii de wa arimasenu ka?*You ought to be more industrious. *Motto sei wo dasanakutchi ikemasenu.*I wish you had waked me earlier. *Mō sukoshi hayaku okoshite kudasareba yokatta.*They seem pretty well made but I wish they were smaller. Zuibun yoku dekite iru yō da ga mō sukoshi chiisakereba yoi.

2. (a).

Miya-no-shita is better than Ha-kone. *Miyanoshita wa Hakone yori atsui tokoro da.*He is a good deal taller than his wife. Kanai yori yohodo sei ga takai.

- In Summer the days are a good deal longer than in Winter. Natsu wa fuyu yori yohodo hi ga nagai.
- Jinrikis are more comfortable than kagos. Jinriki wa kago yori nori-gokoro ga yoi.
- Yoshi is about three months older than Yoni. O Yoshi san wa o Yoni san yori mi tsuki hodo toshi ga ue da.

2. (b).

- This is the prettier but the other is the cheaper. Kono hō ga kirei da ga mō hitotsu no hō ga yasui.

3.

- The quicker the better. Hayai hodo yoi.
- The more the merrier. Ōi hodo omoshiroi.
- The less said the sooner mended. Kuchi-kazu ga sukunai hodo hayaku naoru.
- The more one gets, the more he wants. Mochi-mono ga ōku nareba naru hodo fusoku ga ōku naru.
- The more I study, the less I seem to myself to know. Keiko sureba suru hodo mugaku ni naru yō na kokoromochi da.

SEC. 2.—THE SUPERLATIVE DEGREE.

An absolute superlative is rendered by ichi ban preceding the adjective; a relative superlative—one in which 'very' or 'exceedingly' might be substituted for 'most' without materially affecting the sense, is rendered by some adverb signifying 'very'; as mottomo, itatte.

- Which is the best hotel in Tōkyō? Tōkyō de wa nan to iu yadoya ga ichi ban yō gazaimasu ka?
- The first plan seems to me the best. Saisho no kufū ga ichi ban yosa sō da.
- I suppose Ieyasu was among the most distinguished men of Japan. Ieyasu wa Nihon de mottomo nadakai hito no uchi darō.

CHAPTER VII.—THE ADVERB.

I.—CLASSES.

Japanese words by which English adverbs are rendered may be classified as follows:—

SEC. 1.

The true adverb already noticed in connection with the true adjective; as yoku—well, hayaku—quickly, sōsa mo naku—easily.

SEC. 2.

Uninflected words, which may be divided into three groups:—

1. Those employed without the addition of suffixes. Certain ones among these however are sometimes found followed by ni. Examples—

bakari	only, about	naze	why
dō	how	oioi	gradually
hikkyō	substantially	sō	so
kitto	positively	tabitabi	often
mada	yet	tada	only
mo	even	taisō	very
mō	already	taitēi	generally
moto	originally	suibun	pretty

2. Those followed by ni and analogous to adjectives in na and no; as shizuka ni—quietly, makoto ni—truly.

3. Those followed by to. The group referred to are Japanese words, for the most part of a sort resembling the English words, 'ding-dong', 'pell-mell', 'topsy-turvy', et cetera. They are numerous and frequently heard in common conversation; like their English analogues however rather inelegant. The fuller form is in to shite, though the shite is usually omitted and sometimes the to. Their adjectives are formed by changing to shite into to shita, the to being sometimes dropped; as bonyari to shite or bonyari to or bonyari—dimly; bonyari to shita or bonyari shita—dim. Certain Chinese words will also be found followed by to; as shizen to—naturally, totsuzen to—suddenly. These have besides a form in ni, and their Adjectives which are rare end in no; as shizen no. Examples—

buruburu to	tremblingly	shikkari to	firmly
daradara to	sluggishly	sorosoro to	slowly
guragura to	totteringly	surasura to	glibly
hakkiri to	explicitly	ukkari to	vacantly
ikiiki to	vivaciously	yoroyoro to	staggeringly
kossori to	stealthily	zarazara to	roughly

SEC. 3.

Participles of certain verbs, some affirmative and some negative. Examples occur in which the participle is only the final word of a combination. Examples—

benkyō shite	diligently	ki ni shite	anxiously
damatte	silently	ki wo tsukete	carefully
hokotte	proudly	sei-dashite	vigorously
isoide	quickly	tanki ni shite	impatiently
kanashinde	sadly	uchi-akete	candidly
machigatte	wrong	kawarazu ni	immutably
ochitsuite	calmly	shirazu ni	ignorantly
oshinde	sparingly	tayezu	perennially
sadamete	certainly	kare kore iwazu	} unhesitat- ingly
tsumande	briefly	ni
tsutsushinde	respectfully	mono-oshimazu	} generously
yōjin shite	prudently	ni
yorokonde	gladly	mukō-mizu ni	rashly
haya-sugite	prematurely	omote-datazu ni	informally

SEC. 4.

Why did he say he would not go?	Dō iu wake de ikanai to iimashita ka?

SEC. 2—ACCORDINGLY, CONSEQUENTLY, THEREFORE.

Sore da kara, sore yue ni, (mono) da kara.

Accordingly the Emperor came to Tōkyō.	Sore da kara, Tenshi ga Tōkyō ye o ide nasaru yō ni uatta.
Accordingly they changed the law.	Sore yue ni okite wo kaemashita.
It rained for three days in succession and consequently all the bridges were swept away.	Mikka ame ga furi tsuzuuta mono da kara hashi ga mina ochite shimatta.
The train started fifteen minutes earlier than usual to-day, and consequently we all missed it.	Kyō wa kisha ga itsu mo yori jū go fun hayaku deta mon' da kara, mina ma ni awanakatta.

SEC. 3.—How.

1. Interrogative—dō, ikaga; of an action—dō shite.
2. The way in which, how to—stem of the verb and yō.

I.

- How is the road from here to Hakone? Koko kara Hakone ye iku michi wa dō desu ka?
 How is shōyu made? Shōyu wa dō shite koshiraeru mono desu ka?
 Do you know how photographs are taken? Shashin wa dō shite toru mono desu ka go zonji desu ka?
 Did you hear how your friend was killed. O tomodachi wa dō shite korosareta ka o kiki nasaimashita ka?

2.

- It is very strange how a snake crawls. Hebi no hai yō wa jitsu ni kimyō da.
 Please teach me how to hold my pen. Dōzo fude no mochi yō wo oshiete kudasai.
 I never understand how to use and wa. Dō shite mo ga to wa no tsukai yō ga wakaranai.

SEC. 4.—SO.

1. Manner:—

(a) In this manner—kō, kono yō ni, kono tōri ni.

(b) In that manner— $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} sō, sono yō ni, sono tōri ni. \\ aa, ano yō ni, ano tōri ni. \end{array} \right.$

2. Degree:—

(b) In that degree— $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} sonna ni. \\ anna ni. \end{array} \right.$

3. So . . . that, so . . . as—hodo.

I.

- Please do it so, not so. Dōzo sō de naku, kō shite kudasai.
 If that is your opinion, why don't you say so? Moshi sono go setsu nara, naze sō osshaimasenu ka?
 Please ask Hana who said so. Dare ga sō itta ka o Hana san ni kiite kudasai.
 I thought so. Sō darō to omotta.

2.

CHAPTER VIII.—THE NUMERAL.

SEC. I.—CARDINALS.

Japanese is supplied with two series of cardinals; one Japanese, the other Chinese. The former ends with ten.

JAPANESE.	CHINESE.
1 hitotsu	ichi	11 jū ichi	21 ni jū ichi
2 futatsu	ni	12 jū ni	30 san jū
3 mitsu	san	13 jū san	40 shi jū
4 yotsu	shi	14 jū shi	100 hyaku
5 itsutsu	go	15 jū go	200 ni hyaku
6 mutsu	roku	16 jū roku	300 sam byaku
7 nanatsu	shichi	17 jū shichi	600 rop pyaku
8 yatsu	hachi	18 jū hachi	800 hap pyaku
9 kokonotsu	ku	19 jū ku	1000 sen
10 tō	jū	20 ni jū	2000 ni sen
10,000	man	100,000	jū man
20,000	ni man	1,000,000	hyaku man

The Japanese cardinals usually follow the nouns which they qualify, as chōchin mitsu three lanterns; sometimes however they precede them, in which case they are generally succeeded by the postposition no, as mitsu no hako three boxes.

Instances occur also in which a Japanese cardinal drops its final syllable and precedes a noun without the connecting no. This construction is commonly (not always) employed to express the idea contained in the English suffix 'ful': e. g. hito kuchi not one mouth but one mouthful, futa saji two spoonfuls, mi hako three boxfuls i. e. the quantity contained in three boxes, hito tsukami one handful, mi tsuki three months i. e. the length of time contained in three months, futa hari not two needles but two stitches, hito ashi not one leg but one step. Instances of this construction occur however in which the idea expressed by 'ful' is absent: e. g. mi tsutsumi three parcels (even of different things and different sizes) futa iro two sorts, itsu shina five articles (even of different kinds).

In counting it is usual to say, hi, fu, mi, yo, itsu, (or i) mu, nana, ya, kokono, to. And in rendering accounts, to avoid confusion with shi and go, nana is frequently substituted for shichi and kyū for ku: e. g. kyū sen nine cents, nana jū seventy. Sometimes also yon is substituted for shi: e. g. yon sen four cents, yon jū ni sen forty two cents.

Up to ten the Chinese series is used only with the descriptive numerals and Chinese words of measure, weight, time, et cetera; as sun—inch, shaku—foot, ken—six feet, chō—sixty ken, ri—two miles and a half, kin—catty, hyō—bag, ji—hour, nen—year, et cetera. Above ten the Chinese series is the only one in use.

SEC. 2.—DESCRIPTIVE NUMERALS.

In certain instances the English idiom requires a numeral to be followed by a word (usually) descriptive of the thing enumerated. Sometimes the shape of the article has determined the word used, sometimes the form in which it comes to market, sometimes a marked feature in it, sometimes the need of individualization, et cetera: as two sheets or rolls of paper or music, so many panes of glass, pieces of tape, stacks of hay, bundles of straw, blades of grass, drops of water, flakes of snow, sticks of wood, head of cattle, bales of cotton, pairs of scissors, cups of tea, glasses of wine, copies of a book, pieces of statuary. In Japanese words of this sort are constantly met with, not only because they are much more numerous than in English but also because so many of them are applied to whole classes of objects. Out of more than fifty, the following will be found to embrace most in common use in the colloquial. They are added to the Chinese cardinals; nin, jō and mai however prefer yo (four) to shi.

persons	nin	money, clothes, plates,	} mai animals	hiki	sheets of paper, et ce-birds	wa	tera, and flat things houses	ken	generally .....
ships	sō

shoes } socks }	pairs of	soku	masts, trees, pencils, ropes, umbrellas, tubes,	} hon
jinrikis, guns, candles, scissors }		chō	bottles, and long cylinders generally .....
books {	volumes	satsu	cups, glasses, pails, et	} hai copies	bu	cetera (full) .....
mats		jō

Nin and jō follow the numeral without alteration in either; as ichi nin, san nin, roku nin, jū nin; the following letter changes take place however when the other words are preceded by ichi, san, roku or jū.

HIKI.	HON.	HAI.	KEN.	SŌ.
ip piki	ip pon	ip pai	ik ken	is sō
sam biki	sam bon	sam bai	san gen	san zō
rop piki	rop pon	rop pai	rok ken
jip biki	jip pon	jip pai	jik ken	jis sō

SOKU.	SATSU.	CHŌ.	WA.	MAI.
is soku	is satsu	it chō	sam ba	sam mai
san zoku			rop pa
jis soku	jis satsu	jit chō	jip pa.

Hitori, futari and yottari are common substitutes for ichi, ni and yo nin.

Usually the descriptive numerals follow their nouns; as 'bring me three or four cups of tea,—cha wo san shi hai motte koi;' instances occur, however, where they come first, in which cases they are followed by no; as go satsu no hon—five books.

Illustrations of the use of descriptive numerals will be found on pages 101, 104, 105, and throughout the book generally.

SEC. 3.—ORDINALS.

Ordinals are formed by adding me to the Japanese, or bam (ban) me to the Chinese cardinals. A third series is formed by prefixing dai instead of adding bam me, and a fourth by employing both dai and bam me.

Yo, jū yo, et cetera, take the place of shi, jū shi, et cetera, before bam me; otherwise the series is regular.

No is added to an ordinal to fit it to qualify a noun following.

1st	hitotsu me no	ichi bam me no	dai ichi { no bam me no
2nd	futatsu me no	ni bam me no	dai ni { no bam me no
3d	mitsu me no	sam bam me no	dai { san no sam bam me no
4th	yotsu me no	yo bam me no	dai { shi no yo bam me no
10th	tō me no	jū bam me no	dai jū { no bam me no
11th		jū ichi bam me no	dai jū ichi { no bam me no
20th		ni jū bam me no	dai ni jū { no bam me no

When the succession is one of time, do or hen is employed instead of ban. In like manner, when the ordinals are used in connection with expressions of time, weight, measure, or with the descriptive numerals, these words take the place of ban, a Japanese word being preceded by a Japanese cardinal; as—second time	ni do me fourth time	shi hen me third day	mik ka me

third month	mi tsuki me sixth year	roku nen me fourth pound	shi kin me first chō	it chō me third ri	san ri me eighth tsubo	ya tsubo me
third man	san nin me second dog	ni hiki me fifth house	go ken me fourth jinriki	shi chō me sixth cup	rop pai me seventh page	shichi mai me
eighth bottle	hachi hon me

The adverbial ordinals are formed by prefixing dai and adding ni to the Chinese cardinals; as dai ni ni—secondly, dai san ni—thirdly; usually the ni is dropped after dai ichi—first.

SEC. 4.—FRACTIONS.

Fractions are usually rendered by the Chinese cardinals. The denominator comes first, and is followed by bun no (sometimes contracted into bu) and the numerator; as sam bun no ni—two-thirds, go bun no ichi—one-fifth, jū bun no shi—four-tenths.

The noun half is ham bun; the adjective, han; as—

I'll take half.

Ham bun torimashō.

Half will be plenty.

Ham bun de takusan da.

Can't you wait half an hour?

Han ji kan nataru masenu ka?

SEC. 5.—PERCENTAGE.

Ten per cent is ichi wari; twenty per cent, ni wari. Up to ten, percentage is expressed by bu added to the Chinese cardinals; as ichi bu, ni bu, et cetera.

SEC. 6.—CONSECUTIVE NUMBERS.

In consecutive numbers the highest comes first, the second next, following the English order; as 'the fourth of July, 1776'—sen shichi hyaku shichi jū roku nen, shichi gwatsu, yokka.

SEC. 7.—ADDRESS.

The order is from general to particular, directly the reverse of that usually followed on an English letter. The number of the house is commonly followed by chi (lot); as—

Mr. Maeda Toshimitsu,
No. 2. First Chō, Kobiki Ward,
Kyō Bashi District,
Tōkyō.

Tōkyō,
Kyō Bashi Ku,
Kobiki Chō,
It Chō me ni ban chi,
Maeda Toshimitsu Sama.

CHAPTER IX.—THE POSTPOSITION.

---

What in English are prepositions in Japanese are postpositions, which may be classified as simple and compound.

The simple postpositions are de, ni, ye, no, kara, yorì and made.

The compound postpositions are made up of a noun preceded by no which links them to the foregoing word, and followed by ni; as no shita ni—underneath, no kawari ni—instead of, no tame ni—for the sake of. De, ye and no are sometimes substituted for ni; de and ye to express certain shades of meaning (comp. secs. I, 2, 4), and no to join the postposition to a word following. Compound postpositions become adverbs by dropping no; following an adjective, also, the no is dropped, as sono ue ni—on top of it. These words being nouns are often used as predicates, in which case da takes the place of ni; they may also become the direct object of a verb, when ni gives way to wo.

Some English prepositions are rendered by participles; as ni yotte—according to; and some, when used in a special sense, are translated accordingly, as 'for' (to fetch)—tori ni.

SEC. I.—AT.

I. Place:—

- (a) With a verb of situation—ni.
- (b) With a verb of action—de.

With a verb of situation, ni is used to render both 'in' and 'at'; with a verb of action, de. In certain verbs of action, however, as tatsu—to stand, suwaru—to sit, the idea of action is often subordinate to that of situation; under such circumstances, they will usually be accompanied by ni. This is the explanation of the ni in sentences of the sort on page 95, the point of the inquiry not being whether grass grows in the desert, but whether it grows in the desert—whether there is any grass there; so in the example on page 100, the act of establishing is altogether secondary to the fact that preaching stations have been established—that they exist. Whether de or ni is employed will depend therefore upon what idea is prominent in the speaker's mind; as a general rule however it will be found that aru, oru and iru are accompanied by ni, other verbs by de.

It may be worth while to state in passing that in speaking of companies, associations, the government and departments of the same, et cetera, de is often inserted when in English the simplest construction is one without any preposition. The commonest example of this is seifu de; as 'I hear that the Tōkyō Fu is going to abolish the Chū Gakkō before long'—kondo Tōkyō Fu de Chū Gakkō wo haisu sō da; 'so the Beishō Gwaisha met with a serious loss the other day'—sendatte Beishō Gwaisha de taihen son wo shita sō da; 'they say the Mitsu Bishi Kwaisha expect soon to buy another lot of steamers'—chikajika ni Mitsu Bishi Kwaisha de mata jōkisen wo kai-ireru sō da.

2. Time—ni.

I. (a).

- There used to be a barrier at Hakone. Hakone ni moto sekisho ga atta.

That may be in accordance with the letter of the law, but it is not in accordance with its spirit. Sore wa okite no tummen ni wa kanau ka no shirenai ga, shui ni wa kanaimasen.

CHAPTER X.—THE CONJUNCTION.

Like most of the other parts of speech, English conjunctions are rendered into Japanese in a variety of ways:—

1. By particles ; as to—and, mo—both, ka—or.
2. By nouns ; as yue ni—because, yō ni—so that.
3. By the conditional mood ; as areba—if it is.
4. By the participial forms of the verb and adjective ; as, tomatte o yasumi nasaru ga yō gozarimasu—you had better stop and rest.

SEC. I.—AND.

Connecting:—

1. Nouns—to (which may be repeated after the last noun), ni.
2. Verbs and adjectives—the first verb and usually the first true adjective assume their participial forms, the atte of de atte being dropped and de naku or de nai generally taking the place of de nakute ; adjectives in na and no change na and no into de (de atte). In sentences however containing two subjects whose actions are more or less in contrast, the conjunction is commonly rendered by shi.
3. Present participles—the frequentative form.
4. Equivalent to ‘but,’ ‘yet,’ ‘because,’ ‘when,’ ‘if,’ ‘since,’ et cetera—translated accordingly.
5. And so forth—ya . . . ya . . . nado or dano.

I.

- Please buy some battledoors and shuttlecocks for the children. Dōzo kodomo ni hare to hagoita wo katte yatte kudasai.
- We met a jinriki a kago and two pack-horses on the way. Tochū de jinriki it chō to kago it chō to ni-uma ni hiki ni atta.

- At this season, the river is full of ships loaded with rice, sake, lumber, et cetera. Kono setsu wa kome ya sake ya zaimoku nado wo tsunda fune de kawa ga ip pai da.

SEC. 2.—BOTH. . . . AND.

Mo . . . mo.

- There seem to be plenty of both roses and camellias in your garden. O niwa ni wa bara mo tsubaki mo takusan aru yō desu.
- Some animals can live both on land and in water. Dōbutsu ni yotte wa oka ni mo mizu ni mo sumu koto ga dekiru.
- It has both rained and snowed today. Kyō wa ame mo furi yuki mo futta.
- He was great both in war and in peace. Ikusa no toki ni mo odayaka na toki ni mo erai hito de atta.
- Many things are both useful and ornamental. Yaku ni mo tachi kazari ni mo naru mono ga ōku aru.

SEC. 3.—TOO, ALSO.

1. In addition—mo.
2. Likewise—mo yahari or yappari; yahari is sometimes understood.

I.

Bring a spoon along too.
I'll take the children too.

2.

Are you sick too?
Does your right eye pain you also?
I have a cold too.

Anata mo yahari go byōki desu ka?
Migi no me mo yahari itamimasu ka?
Watakushi mo yahari kazake de go- zaimasu.

They have a custom just like that in Japan too.

Nihon ni mo yahari sore to onaji yō na
fūzoku ga arimasu.

Even that is a little too big too.

Sore de mo yahari sukoshi ōki sugiru.

I question about this one's being gold too (the other one I think is gold).

Kore de mo yahari kin ka shirenai.

Did you forget to speak about that too?

Yappari sore wo iu no mo wasureta no
ka?

SEC. 4.—BUT.

Ga, keredomo.

You may go but come home early.
It looks like rain but it may clear.

Dete mo yoi ga hayaku kaette o ide.
Ame ga furi sō da ga hareru ka mo
shiremasenu.

I tried to get him to write for me,
but he would n't do it.

Ano hito ni kaite morawō to omotte
tanonda ga kotowarimashita.

SEC. 5.—THOUGH, ALTHOUGH, STILL.

1. Although—keredomo, (stronger) even though—particle and mo.

2. Even so, and yet—sore de mo, da ga, yahari.

I.

- He will probably get well now, Mada yohodo warui keredomo tabun though he is still very sick. naorimashō.
- I suppose we shall have to take it, Ki ni iranai keredomo, shikata ga although it does n't suit. arimasumai.
- He won't give a cent though he is a Kanemochi de mo ichi mon mo yara- rich man. nai.
- He won't give up smoking though it Karada no gai ni natte mo tabako wo is injuring him. yamenai.
- He is getting pretty old, still he is Yohodo toshiyori ni natte mo, mada strong yet. tassha da.

- Still, you had better apologize. Sore de mo wabi wo nasaru ga yokarō.
- Still, you will have to take at least Da ga sukunakute mo hyakkin gurai a hundred pounds of baggage. o nimotsu wo motte ikanakeria (ika- nakereba) naranai.
- Still, it will cost a thousand dollars. Yahari sen yen gurai wa kakaru darō.
- Still, you had better stick to it. Yahari yamezu ni yaru ga ii.
- Still, she can not possibly be in for a Yappari nagai aida kakaranakutcha long time yet. tsuku wake ni ikimasenu.

SEC. 6.—EITHER, OR, WHETHER.

1. One or the other—ka. In questions connected by 'or' in which the members are in contrast, and also in sentences containing 'whether' followed by 'or,' a verb understood in English must be repeated: to put it differently, in such cases the Japanese ask two complete questions. It should be stated here that questions in Japanese are followed by ka; after such interrogative words as naze, dare, et cetera however ka is often omitted.

2. Either one or the other no matter which; whichever is preferred ; both alike possible, permissible or matters of indifference ; in either case—mo . . . mo.

3. Either with a negative and equivalent to any more or better than something or some one else—yahari. When the subject or the object is expressed, yahari is commonly accompanied by mo.

I.

- This must be the third or the fourth. Kyō wa mikka ka yokka darō.
 Is Miss Hana or Miss 'Take at home? O Hana san ka o Take san wa o uchi desu ka?
 Is this red or black? Kore wa akai ka kuroi ka?
 Is this the fifth, or the sixth (which)? Kyō wa itsuka desu ka, muika desu ka?
- Were you speaking to him, or about him? Ano hito ni osshatta no desu ka, ano hito no koto wo osshatta no desu ka?
 Will you need a jinriki, or not? Jinriki ga o iriyō desu ka, o iriyō de gozaimasenu ka?
- Please ask whether the bath is ready. Yu no shitaku ga yoi ka kiite kudasai.
 Do you know whether it is raining at Odawara? Odawara wa ame ga futte iru ka shitte o ide ka?
 I don't know whether it is silk or crape. Kinu desu ka chirimen desu ka zonji-masenu.
 I don't know whether it will rain or not. Ame ga furu ka furanai ka wakari-masenu.
 Do you know whether the steamer goes to-day, or to-morrow? Jōkisen wa kyō deru ka, ashita deru ka go zonji desu ka?

- You can either take a kago or walk. Kago ni noru koto mo aruku koto mo dekimasu.
 Tell him he may come either to-morrow or the day after. Ashita kite mo asatte kite mo ii to sō ie.

- I told the carpenter he might make them either round or square. Maruku shite mo shikaku ni shite mo ii to daiku ni iimashita.
- I don't care whether it rains or not. Ame ga futte mo furanakute mo kamawanai.
- It does n't make a bit of difference whether he stays or not. Tomatte mo tomaranai de mo dō de mo yoi.
- It does n't make any difference whether it is bamboo or not. Take de (atte) mo take de nakute mo dō de mo yoi.
- Does it make any difference whether it is cut or torn? Tatte mo saite mo yō gozaimasu ka?
- Is it all the same whether it is round or square? Marukute mo shikaku de mo onaji koto desu ka?
- Please buy it whether it costs one dollar or ten? Ichi en de mo jū en de mo ii kara, dōzo katte kudasai.
- He will probably die, whether he takes it or not. Sore wo nonde mo nomanakute mo muzukashikarō.
- I'll send him whether he likes it or not. Iya de mo ō de mo yarimasu.

- That won't do either. Yappari ikenai.
- See there, I don't believe you can do it either. Sore goran nasai, yahari dekimasumai.
- You must n't leave your light burning either. Yappari akari wo tsukete oitcha ikenai.
- You can't go either. Yahari omae mo ikarenai.
- That pattern does not suit me either. Sono moyō mo yahari ki ni irimasenu.
- He did n't say a word about that either. Yappari sono koto mo nan to mo iwanakatta.
- They do not say that either. Yappari sore mo iimasenu.

In this sentence sore takes the place of sō (comp. V. sec. 1), because the reference is to a particular expression and not to the general contents of a statement.

SEC. 7.—NEITHER . . . NOR.

Mo . . . mo with the negative. When the subject is asserted to be neither one of two substantives, mo is preceded by de, de nai and not nai being used in predicating nouns (comp. II. IV.), as 'this is not a dog'—kore wa inu de nai; accordingly, 'this is neither a dog nor a cat'—kore wa inu de mo (nai) neko de mo nai; on the other hand, 'this is not cheap' being kore wa yasuku nai, 'this is neither cheap nor good' will be kore wa yasuku mo (nai) yoku mo nai.

nor shōjis.

There were neither fleas nor mus- Nomi mo ka mo oranakatta.
quitoes.

A wise man desires neither poverty Chisha wa mazushiki mo tomi mo nor riches. nozomimasenu.

She is neither young nor beautiful. Ano onna wa wakaku mo utsukushiku mo nai.

It has neither rained nor snowed for Hito tsuki no aida ame mo furazu yuki a month. mo furanai.

This morning you neither swept nor Kesa kono heya wo haki mo sezu hataki dusted the room. mo shinakatta.

Hereafter I'll neither borrow nor Mō kore kara kari mo shinai shi kashi lend. mo shinai.

He can neither read nor write. Yomu koto mo kaku koto mo dekima- senu.

It is neither a flea nor a mosquito. Nomi de mo ka de mo gozaimasenu.

young. gozaimasenu.

SEC. 8.—IF, UNLESS.

1. Followed by :—

(a) The present, future or present perfect negative (is, does, be, will, shall, has not (comp. II. v. sec. 3.)—conditional present, or indicative present and nara. Nara often follows a substantive directly, de aru being understood.

(b) The past (was, did, have, had, should, would, were, could, might)—conditional past, or indicative past and nara.

2. When 'if' introduces a future effect or consequence (sometimes expressed in English by 'and'), it is frequently rendered by the indicative present and zo.

3. Mere supposition, 'in case,' 'supposing that,' may be rendered by toki wa (often preceded by moshi).

4. Even if—participle and mo.

Unless is rendered in the same way as 'if not.'

I. (a).

If it is on the Tōri we can find it directly. Tōri ni areba jiki ni shireru darō.

You must n't go out if it is raining. Ame ga futte ireba dete wa ikimasenu.
I think he'll go if he is not otherwise engaged. Hoka ni yōji ga nakereba iku darō.

I suppose he'll stop at Kōbe unless he is in a hurry. Isoganakeria Kōbe ye yorimashō.

You need not pay for it if it does not suit. O hi ni iranakeriba dai wa yō gozaimasu.

You had better not buy them unless they are cheap and good. Yasukute yokunakeria kawanai hō ga ii.

You must keep quiet if you come in here. Koko ye kuru nara shizuka ni shinakeriba naranai yo.

- If you will lend me your knife I will make you a kite. Kogatana wo kasu nara tako wo koshiraete yarō.
- Shall I call him if he has not got up yet? Mada o oki nasaranai nara, okoshimasumai ka?
- If you have not put it in your room, where have you put it? Iieya ni okanai nara doko ye okimashita?
- They probably got along without difficulty, if the bridges have not been carried away. Hashi ga ochinai nara, zōsa mo naku ikaretarō.

- If he left Nagasaki on the 20th, he must have arrived on the 22nd or 23rd. Hatsuka ni Nagasaki wo detara, ni jū ni nichi ka san nichi ni tsuita hazu da.
- If the ship did not arrive yesterday, I can't go. Kinō fune ga tsukanakattara, mairemasenu.
- If he has paid the money, as a matter of course you give him a receipt. Dai wo harattara, uketori wo yaru no wa atarimae da.
- Unless you put it out, the light must be burning still. O keshi nasaranakatta nara, mada akari ga tsuite imashō.
- Never mind, if you have sealed up your letter. Tegami wo fūjite o shimai nas'tta nara yoroshiū gazaimasu.
- You will never find it, if you have dropped it in the street. Tōri ye o otoshi nas'tta nara, dō shite mo arimasumai.
- What shall I do if he should be out? Rusu dattara, dō shiyō?
- Could we see the fireworks if we went up to the third story? Sangai ye nobottara, hanabi ga miemashō ka?
- If I were you, I would n't do it. Watakushi nara, sō wa itashimasenu.

THE CONJUNCTION.

2.

- You'll break it if you don't take Ki wo tsukenai to kowaremasu yo

- What shall I do supposing my pass- Menjō ga kite inai toki wa dō itashi- port has not come? mashō?
- If there is none on the Tōri, what Tōri ni nai toki wa dō shiyō?
then?
- In case there should be war with Shina to ikusa ga hajimatta toki wa dō
China, how do you suppose it narimashō ka?

4.

- Probably he would not have been Oyogi yō wo shitte ite mo tasukara- saved, even if he had known how nakattarō.
to swim.
- He won't understand even if you Toki-akashite kikasete mo wakaranai.
explain it.

SEC. 12.—THAN.

1. With the comparative degree—comp. VI. II. sec. I.
2. Rather than—yori isso.
3. More than (of quantity or number):—
  - (a) In affirmative sentences—(generally) amari or no yo. De wa kikanai, which is more emphatic, may also be used of number, but only in affirming the existence of excess.
  - (b) In negative sentences—(generally) yori yokei ni.

I.

- A locomotive is a good deal faster Jōkisha wa jōkisen yori yohodo hayai.
than a steamer.
- He can not stay longer than two or Ni san nichi yori nagaku wa toma-

In a certain place they had an extraordinary dunce of a Chōkichi. Among other kinds of people there are in the world many dunces: but this one was an accomplished dunce. He was a perfect expert at forgetting things.

One day his mistress said to him, See here Chōkichi! This is the anniversary of the death of the founder of our family, and his Reverence will be here before long: so we must have the offerings set before the naibutsu. You hurry to Nihon Bashi and buy some carrots, dock, wild potatoes, mushrooms, and lotus root—these five things. Saying this she gave him five tempos: and Chōkichi, with an exclamation of assent, tucked up his skirt behind and started off from the house with the tempos in his hand. As he was hurrying along towards Nihon Bashi on a dog-trot, there met him his neighbour Chōmatsu coming from the opposite direction. Holloa! Chōkichi said he. You are in an extraordinary hurry: what are you after? And where are you going? To Nihon Bashi to buy some things, said he, and hurried on. Well, what are you going to buy? he asked. What am I going to buy? I don't know, said he. So the story goes. This forgetting the important business that his mistress sent him on and only racing the street—what a piece of folly!

However this Chōkichi is not to be easily laughed at. It may not be true of this audience, but away back in the country there are many people who forget the essential urgent business, just like this Chōkichi. And yet so far as other matters are concerned they know all about them. For an experiment, ask any body.

Holloa Hachibei! It is said that every thing born into this world is born with a commission from Heaven. For example: The cow and the horse—what were they born into the world for? If you ask him that, Hachibei will say, That is something that any body can tell: they were born to carry heavy loads and to save people labour. The cock—what was he born for? If you ask him that, he will say, He was born to tell the hours. The dog—what was he born for? He is to keep the gate. The cat—what is she for? She is to catch rats. The plum tree—what is that for?

*Sori ya ume wo narashi ni. Kaki no ki wa nani wo shi ni? Sori ya kaki wo narashi ni. Sate mata: kono chawan wa? Sori ya yu cha wo kumi ni. Kono ōgi wa? Sori ya kaze wo dashi ni. Kono kendai wa? That is to bear plums. The persimmon tree—what is that for? That is to bear persimmons. Once more: this tea cup? That is to pour hot water and tea in. This fan? That is to make a breeze. This book-rest? That is to hold books. (Ask what you please, so far as other matters are concerned he knows all about them). Well then, Hachibei, you yourself—what were you born into the world for? If you ask him that, then even Hachibei will scratch his head and say about this: Well! what was I born for? I don't know: most likely I came to eat rice and find fault. To think that man alone has come into this world to wander purposeless—that also is to belong to Chōkichi's company.

In a poem by Kyosuke in Fubokushu:

O Bloom of Youth!
Whither
Hast thou gone,
Leaving in thy stead
An unknown old man?

Precisely so! It is man alone that has not come into this world to eat rice and grow old. Man is called the lord of the universe: of all things he is chief. He is not like the dog or the cat: and it is not for him to wander aimlessly.

Well, to go on with the story. Our Chōkichi went as far as Nihon Bashi, but the necessary purchases he quite forgot. And so, as he was loitering about the neighbourhood with the tempos in his hand, he accidentally spied some mochi in a mochi shop. And first he bought and eat about a dozen pieces of that. Then he loitered here and he loitered there: he drank some amazake and he stopped at a sake shop. And he spent every one of the five tempos in buying things in the street and eating them there. And besides this he went home grumthey said to him. Look here Chō-

 Have you brought what I told you?
 When they said this, Chōkichi answered in a dazed sort of a way, No:
 I have n't brought any thing at all.
 Thereupon his master said to him angrily, What have you done with the coppers that were given to you?
 Oh the coppers! said he, I spent them all for things to eat in the street: and they were n't nearly enough. Both the master and the mistress were completely dumb-founded. Why! what are you dreaming about? The five tempos—do you understand? I did n't give them to you and tell you to spend them in any such way as that. I gave them to you to have you buy the five things—the carrots the dock and the rest. And yet instead of buying what we need, you spent them all on your things to eat in the street: and on top of that you tell us that you had n't coppers enough. Well! you must be a perfect idiot! And they beat the mats and scolded away. (Dunces are perfectly hopeless). Why! said Chōkichi, with a look of utter surprise. Do you want some carrots and some dock? If that is what you want, I've just been to Nihon Bashi. Why did n't you tell me? That would have been just the very time to get them.

Well! well! He was an accomplished dunce! And in the wide world one would hardly find any one who would keep such a fellow for five minutes even. So in the end there was no help for him but to be packed off with two or three cuffs across his head. However it is quite useless for any of you to hear a story of this kind and merely roar over it. This is simply a parable. And with the words (of Confucius) on our lips, 'If I see folly I look within myself,' to-day both you and I also who thus speak to you should consider well whether we too do not belong to this company of Chōkichi.

In the first place, we received at birth from our Master Heaven these admirable bodies which we call the five members. We were provided *go hyaku mon no zeni dokoro ka mada mada chōhō na go kan to iute, me ni wa mi, mimi ni wa kiki, hana ni wa kagi, kuchi ni wa ajiwai, mi ni wa oboeru no itsutsu no hataraki wo sonae : kokoro ni wa, go jō to iute—jin gi rei chi shin no itsutsu no dōri wo umare tsuita mo. with what we call the five senses, far more precious than the five temples—the five functions of seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear, smelling with the nose, tasting with the mouth, and feeling with the skin. In our hearts, likewise we received at birth what we call the five virtues—the five principles of jin, gi, rei, chi, shin. And the real meaning is simply this: Heaven desires to have us buy what we call the five relations—the carrots and the dock which are these five things: obedience to parents, loyalty to masters, concord between husband and wife, harmony among brothers, and in our intercourse with others an intercourse of mutual fidelity. And yet quite forgetting the essential urgent business of the Five Rules or Doctrines, day and night we spend our time in nothing but this buying and eating things in the street with its, 'I want this—I want that—that will not do—or there is not enough of this.' Why! is not this Chōkichi? It was not to wander about thus purposeless that we were born!

NOTES.

Oku : to keep in one's service. Ahō mo : dunces also, i. e. as well as other kinds of people. Nen no itta : elaborate, accomplished. Dai-meijin : here, an expert.

O Tera sama : the temple for the priest : compare o hachi the bowl for the rice, in the selection entitled Mint Anise and Cummin. Hodo ni: here, and not infrequently, used in the sense of 'because.' Naibutsu: household idols including both images of Buddha and other gods, and also the names of ancestors carved on wooden tablets called ihai. Ryōgu: more literally, sacred articles. Okanya: okaneba. Sochi wa: wa suggests a contrast: Chōkichi was to go for the offerings; others were to attend to other things. Itsu shina: see page 170. Kōte kite kure to (itte). Hyaku mon sen: a tempō coin, a tempō. Watashimashitareba: when she gave him: the conditional is frequently best rendered by the indicative followed by 'and.' Ii nagara: as he said, with an exclamation of. Migi no: the right: compare the English expression 'the above:' here and often best rendered 'the.' Tokoro: as. Sore wa: literally, as to that: constantly used as introductory to a statement referring to something said or done; and best rendered by some such expression as 'well,' or sometimes by the exclamatory 'why!' Are wa: wa implies the contrast, others may but I do not. Ge na: sō da: so the story goes. To (iu koto): here and often rendered 'this.' Sekidomo ni wa.....

.....tōi inaka nado ni wa: wa emphasizes the contrast; in one, one thing; in the other, another. Yoso no koto wa: wa rather than wo brings out the contrast: other matters they know all about, their own duties they know nothing about. Dare ni na to: dare ni de mo.

To iu koto ja: it is said that. Sori ya: frequently in these selections for sore wa. Chawan: the preacher now points to several things lying about him. Sono toki wa: wa suggests a contrast: before this time Hachibei had answered promptly, now he hesitates. Hachibei mo: even Hachibei who was so glib about every thing else. Sareba:

well. Kurai expresses the idea that is about what he would say.

Fubokushu : a collection of poems of which Kyosuke is one of the writers. The poem is what is called an uta. The uta consists of five verses composed respectively of 5-7-5-7-7 syllables ; what is called a ku consists of three verses composed respectively of 5-7-5 syllables. Both uta and ku appear from time to time in these selections : their style is of course quite different from that of the colloquial, and no grammatical explanation of them is attempted. The uta here quoted is a lamentation over wasted opportunities. To : the sign of quotation. Hito bakari ga : ga rather than wa singles out man as precisely the being that has not et cetera. Neko to wa : wa expresses contrast : whatever else man may resemble, he is quite different from the animals.

Kaimono wa : wa rather than wo emphasizes the fact that it was the forgetting of the great object of his errand that led him into error. Mochi nagara : literally, while holding. Mazu : here as often meaning 'first : ' frequently it means 'for example.' To : the Japanese use ten indefinitely, as we use the word dozen. Bakari : here and often means 'about' rather than 'only.' Mo : here equivalent to 'or so.' Jokan : real sake, not amasake. Go hyaku mon wa : had wo been employed rather than wa the meaning would be simply that he spent five tempos : wa brings out the idea that the tempos he spent were the ones so often referred to ; not simply five tempos, but the five tempos. Kaigui : buying a thing in the street and eating it there. Mada fusoku ja : not, I have not had enough to eat ; but the amount of money was too small. Kamo-namban ga ; a preparation of duck buckwheat and onions, and the greatest delicacy to be had at the sobaya : ga rather than wa expresses the idea that the things mentioned were precisely the things that he would have liked to eat. Tokoro : when. Uchi ni wa : wa brings out the contrast : Chōkichi had been cool enough, at home things were quite different. Shi otta : in Tōkyō, shite otta. Chōkichi wa.....teishu wa : wa emphasizes the contrast : one cool and the other furiously ; one said this, and the other said that. Kōte wa kimasenu : wa emphasizes kōte, bringing out clearly the idea that he had returned without any purchases. Na : ne. Seyo to (itte) : literally, I did not give them saying spend them. Watashi wa senu : a stronger form of denial than the simple negative. Sore ni : here and not infrequently with the adversative force of 'and yet.' To wa : to iu koto wa. To.....shikarimashitareba : like to iu, to kiku, to omou. Tatami wo tataite : very likely with their pipes. Ahō.....nai : parenthetical remark of the preacher. Chōkichi wa : wa still contrasts Chōkichi's coolness with the irritation of the others. Gobō ga : had Chōkichi wished simply to know whether his master desired some dock or not, he would have used wa instead of ga. What he really wished to know was whether it was because he had no dock that he was excited. Do you want some dock? is that the reason why you are excited? And therefore he says ga. This principle is of frequent application, and in many instances explains the presence of ga rather than wa in interrogative sentences. See page 278. Ni gozarimasu : de gozarimasu. Ano toki ga : ga rather than wa singles out that as a particularly convenient time to make the purchases. This use of ga finds its equivalent in English in the insertion of such expressions as 'precisely that,' 'just the very,' 'that of all others,' 'the.' This is a principle of wide application: and is one among other cases in which the use of ga or wa determines the point of the sentence. Yashinōte oku mono wa: again wa suggests contrast; there are people who will stand a great deal, but there are very few who will keep such a dunce. Futatsu mitsu mo: as often mo imparts indefiniteness. Shiyō wa: contrast suggested by wa: whatever else may be tried, that alone is the way out of the difficulty. Kari no; mere. Kaerimiru to (itte): with the words et cetera; literally, saying if et cetera. Chōkichi ga: Chōkichi no.

Tentō Sama to iu: to iu simply unites Tentō Sama and go Shujin in apposition. Dokoro ka mada mada: an idiomatic expression equivalent to 'far more than.' Go kan to iute: to iute rather than to iu is preferable before the series of expressions following. Mo: likewise. Hikkyō.....
bakari ja: rendered 'the real meaning is simply this:' other renderings of hikkyō are, 'the sum and substance,' 'in fact,' 'in fine,' 'on the whole,' 'in the long run,' 'looking at it all around,' 'after all,' 'in the end,' 'taking it all,' 'the fact is that,' 'if we analyze the motives.' Gobō ga: ga rather than wo points out precisely what Heaven would have us buy. Go Ten and Go Kyō: terms applied to the five virtues jin, gi, rei, chi, shin. Sumanu no: no here means 'or.' To iu kaigui: to iu connects what precedes as an attributive of what follows: rendered, 'with its.'

In an old farmhouse away back in the country in one of the provinces, handed down from their ancestors, was a real genuine masamune. This fact a certain curiosity hunter heard of. And thinking to himself, "Well, by a very respectful request I might get him to show it to me," he came a long way to visit the house, saw the master and went through with the courtesies et cetera customary on first meeting.

Well: "It was a very great intrusion on his part, but a rumor had reached his ears. The masamune, the treasure of his family, was not a thing to be seen by every body. But if it were possible he wished to be permitted to look at it for a moment. He had come to-day without an invitation. And if he would kindly condescend to let him see it, it would afford him the greatest pleasure." After this courteous request it afforded the host also great pleasure. "Why! it was no trouble at all," he said. And immediately he took (the sword) out of the godown and showed it to him. Thereupon first of all (the visitor) removed the cover of the kiri box and looked inside. And inside (he saw the sword) enclosed in a beautiful brocade bag with even the certificate of genuineness attached. He took it out of the bag and looked at it. It was in a plain white scabbard and about a foot and two or three inches long. He took it up and first glanced down at the curve and the length and the proportions of the sword. And then he attempted to draw the blade, but to save himself he could not get it out. So he said, "How is this?" and handed it to the host. The host replied, with an innocent face, "That is because it has not been used for a long time: and probably it is rusted fast." And as he spoke he took it just as it was, braced (his left hand) against his (left) knee and tugged with all his might: and at last with a scraping sound he did manage to get it out. But it was a red dried sardine, and had been rusted fast to the scabbard. So the story goes.

The visitor was utterly astounded too, and inquired "Why! what have you done to your precious weapon?" With an innocent face the host replied "Oh! This is a famous masamune blade, and a sharp instrument. So it seemed to me that it was a tool to cut anything with: and as I thought it would be a pity to keep it idle, I made full use of it. And this is the result." "Why! what did you use it for?" said (the visitor). "Well! for no one thing in particular. my godown I chopped up a lot of straw. But as it was an old fashioned thing of course it was never very handy to use. However I felt that it was one of the things that have come down from our ancestors: so I put up with the inconvenience of it, and used it just as long as it could cut. As you see, the point is broken, the edge is nicked, it is rusty, and now it has come to be this useless sort of a thing. And so as I could not throw it away I put it back into its old scabbard and set it away in the godown. It must be about twenty or thirty years ago. But to-day you came to visit me from a long distance: and simply for that reason I have taken it out and shown it to you. For no matter how much of a masamune (a sword) may be, if you use it—it gets to be a thing like this. It is of no more use than a surikogi.”

What a piece of folly! That he was a man born away back in the country and did not know, we may admit: at the same time he utterly ruined what was a national treasure.

Now this is a mere parable. Whether it even really happened is very doubtful. But are not the young men and women in this audience also doing the same sort of thing as this old fellow? “Our whole body we receive from our parents: and to take good care of it is the beginning of filial piety. ## NOTES.

Aru : a certain, certain of, one of. Masamune : the name of a celebrated sword-maker; applied also to the swords made by him. To iu koto wo.....kikimashite : heard that: in rendering Japanese into English it is frequently simpler to begin a new sentence. Sore wa : well. Mo : also, et cetera.

The language following is very formal and courteous; just such as might be expected under the circumstances. Chikagoro : here not 'lately' but 'very': so also in the expression Chikagoro o kinodoku de gozarimasu. Nagara : but. Tōke : family. Chōhō : treasure. Hisō no mono : a thing not to be shown to every body. Ainarimasu koto : a possible thing. Zonzubeshi : zonjimasu. Sore wa sore wa : why! To : to itte. Miserareru : the preacher uses the potential out of courtesy to the owner of the sword: the present is more graphic than the past. Ni : on, thereupon. Naka ni wa : wa is often added in repeating a word just used. Mireba : the conditional is frequently best rendered by the indicative followed by 'and.' Aru wo : in English we should supply the word saw. Shiraki no bōzaya : plain white wood, i. e. not one covered with shark's skin for example. Ue kara.....hito tōri miawasete : glanced down. Tokoro ga : but. To : to itte. Sore wa : often best rendered 'that is because.' Yue : because, on account of, therefore, and so, and. Sono mama : just as it was ; i. e. without any preliminaries, e. g. pouring in a little oil. Nukeru koto wa nukemashitaredo : rather than the simple verb expresses the idea that he got it out but nothing more : rendered did manage. Mo : too, i. e. as well as the preacher's audience. Kori ya (kore wa) : like sore wa may mean 'why!' Hei : expresses surprise at the surprise of the visitor. To mōsu koto yue : on account of the fact that, and so. Watakushi.....ni wa : it seemed to me, others perhaps would have thought differently. Oku wa : oku no wa. To iu yue : because he said : omitted in the translation. Nasubi : in Tōkyō, called nasu. Kore mo : this also, i. e. he had some other old rubbish ; rendered 'one of the things.' Kireru ni makashite : just as long as it would cut : ni makasete is employed idiomatically to express the idea of making full use of, using without reservation ; hima ni makasete as much as my time will permit, fude ni makasete kaku to write without reservation, ben ni makasete shaberi-tsuzukimashita he kept chattering on as long as his tongue would rattle, ashi ni makasete kakeru, to run as fast as one's legs will carry him. Ha wa : mo would be quite as good as wa. Suterare mo sezu : mo suggests that he could not dispose of it in any other way either: he had some sentiment about it. Saya ye osamete: while using it he had not kept it in its sheath. San jū nen ni mo: mo renders the expression less definite. Sunawachi: simply for that reason. To wa: wa emphasizes the fact that while admitting that, there is another side to the matter. Sekai no takara: about equivalent to national treasure. Toza no: mere. Koto shite de wa gozaranu ka: koto wo shite wa oide nasaranu ka. Shintai: the quotation is from the Kōkyō of Confucius, one of the first Chinese books that Japanese boys read. Aete sokonai yaburazaru wa: not to recklessly injure, to take good care of. Motte: by these means. To: the sign of quotation. Jiyū-jizai: free to do any thing: with a masamune one can cut any thing, with his body one can do any thing. Meiken: meiken (de). Chigai wa: wa rather than ga suggests that whatever else there may be doubt about, there is none as to the fact mentioned.

Thereupon his father seeing this said to him, "As the road is bad you will be tired if you wear ashida: wear waraji." Again he said, "Very well:" and taking off the ashida directly, put on waraji instead, and saying "Good bye," once more set out. Seeing this his mother said to him, "If you wear waraji your feet will be too muddy to go into any body's house: take your ashida." Again he said "Very well:" put on ashida instead: and was about to go. Once more his father seeing this said to him, "If you wear ashida it will probably be troublesome to you if the road should dry: so take waraji." Again he said "Very well." and exchanged them for waraji.

In this way he kept taking off and putting on waraji and ashida over and over again. Finally he put a waraji on one foot and an ashida on the other, and went to Miyoshimachi which lay about a ri away. On the road some one who knew him saw him and asked "Why do you walk in such a ridiculous fashion as that?" To which he replied. waraji, my mother told me to wear ashida. And, since they are parental commands, I can not possibly disobey either of them: and so I travel in this way." Such is the story: and even such rare filial sons are to be found.

From this single action his daily conduct towards his parents may be inferred: and our tears flow. The consequence was that the daimyō of the place was deeply impressed with the filial piety of Seiemon, and often too had a word of praise for him. And finally Seiemon was granted in the land held by him one se of rice-land in perpetuity and free from taxes.

This happened in the third year of Meireki (Hi-no-to no Tori) on the 24th day of the 10th month. And thirteen years later, in the ninth year of Kambun (year Tsuchi-no-to no Tori), the daimyō hearing of Seiemon's poverty, among other kindnesses, gave him six hundred me of silver. Moreover in the time of his son Shichibei the family got heavily into debt. And when the family seemed now likely to be ruined, the second daimyō of the place recalled the filial piety of the father Seiemon and paid the whole debt for them. Afterwards the family gradually grew prosperous, their descendants inherited the property from father to son. And to this day they are farmers, and retain also in their possession the documents of that time.

This will be found in full in Gei-bi Kōgiden as well as in other works also. And from this instance too I pray you ponder well what I have been saying. Even old illustrious families in the course of time fall into obscurity. But owing to the filial piety of Seimon, his family has never become extinct; gradually his descendants grew prosperous; and to this day they inherit the property from generation to generation. And this fact is really quite without a parallel for congratulation. Prosperity and adversity are like Spring and Autumn. And therefore in the long run they have frequent vicissitudes of rising and falling: but if only one follow the michi he shall never be utterly ruined. Precisely this is what is meant by "In the house where goodness accumulates there is of a certainty overflowing happiness." And therefore for you and me a simple smiling cheerful service, such as will not disregard the wishes of our parents—that is the great thing.

To resume: As I went on to say to you at our last session also, in every thing whatever it is a law of nature that from the small is produced the great, from the light the heavy, from the thin the thick. Therefore in the text Confucius said, “In the words of the Diagram Kon in Eki also it is said, We tread the frost and the hard ice comes.”

To make that clear: Water in its natural state is something fluid and yielding, but when it condenses it becomes snow or frost. Moreover the snow or frost accumulates on a road where people pass to and fro: and if day after day they trample it down, it afterwards becomes hard ice. That is the meaning.

Such also is the heart of man. When we were born we were without even a particle of what we call self. Why! we were pliant things: but the older we grow, as we see and as we hear, more and more wrong thoughts cling to us; and some day there is produced what we call self. According to a poem by Mujū:

*In my error,
I began to take
My shadow for myself;
My real self
I quite forgot.*

What one has never once seen, never heard of, never said, never done, even though he should desire to think of it, there is no way to think of it: even though he should desire to stray into it, there is no way to stray into it. Looking at the matter thus, the turmoil in our breasts finds its source in the shadow of this fleeting world. It is that shadow that some day becomes the master in our hearts: that it is that causes disobedience to parents, disloyalty to masters, and produces evil deeds of every kind. In proof of that: Neither old Ishikawa Goemon nor Nihon Zaemon was such a terrible fellow from his babyhood. No doubt at all they were children of a sweet childhood with the first tricks learned at last of pat-a-cake, pat-a-cake, ā-wā-wa, how big is baby, and round and round the cider mill. According to the old verse:

The fearful

Therefore lest we grow used to evil we should give diligence to form habits of virtue.

The old saying also runs: "If for a single day one does right, good fortune may not come as yet, but evil fortune of itself will keep away." If for even a single day smilingly and cheerfully we practice right towards our parents and masters, though Fu-

Therefore it is that I am ever urging it upon you all to know the honshin. If in walking abroad on a dark night one sends the lantern bearer in advance, go where he may there is no danger: but if one strides along with reckless steps with his lantern bearer thirty or forty feet behind him, there is no telling what places he may wander into or how he may be injured. It is a perilous thing to do. I have an entertaining story that will illustrate this.

They say regarding what we call shōjō-hi, that the genuine is dyed with the blood of shōjō found in the China Sea. Now those shōjō, among other things, like men talk well. They are exceeding clever things. And so they know before hand all about their being caught; and hide away down at the bottom of the sea. It is next to impossible to get ahead of them—so they say. However the intelligence of men is something exceptional. They understand perfectly that the shōjō are very fond of sake; and therefore if they let them have a smell of it they will be certain to come up out of the sea. So they put some sake in sake jars, and with dippers along side arrange a lot of them in the meadows on the shore. Then they take the grass growing around and, without cutting it off, tie it together; make a lot of it into the shape of shoes and leave them there. The men on guard retire to a distance and watch. Thereupon, so it seems, the odor of the sake penetrates to the very bottom of the sea: and the Shōjō snuff it up.

"I say! Sansuke Shōjō! Is n't there some kind of pleasant odor? This is that sake: but still let us go up out of the sea," says one. Upon this Sansuke Shōjō replies, "No! no! we must not go up recklessly. It is a terrible trap to get us to drink it, make us drunk and then beat us to death." Thereupon one of them answers, "Oh pshaw! there is no danger in going up provided we don't drink it: it is enough better to go there and get the scent of the sake than it is to be here and have the sea-weedy smell of the sea." When he says this, all the shōjō exclaim, "Of course: that is so. There can be no harm in merely smelling it. Come along! all hands, come!" So saying they leave the water on tiptoe, come up to the sake jars: and that is a very different thing from smelling it at the bottom of the sea. And so they all exclaim, "Ah! this is fragrance!

 the temptation. I say! suppose we take one dipperful apiece." Upon this another of them says, "Oh no!
 it will never do actually to touch it in that reckless way. Those shōjō that have been caught heretofore also all of them snatched up the dip-pers, guzzled down the sake; and so at last got drunk and were beaten to death. Thereupon they all exclaim "You are quite right. It would not do to drink it with the dippers:
 but it would be quite safe for each of us merely to wet his finger just a little and lick it off. Suppose we do it," said they all. Then every one wets his finger in the sake, licks a little off: and that is a very different thing from smelling it. So they walk round and round licking it off and smacking their lips. While they are doing this another of the shōjō says, "Well really I feel as if it were not quite up to the mark, if we are only to lick it off in this way.
 And even if we do drink with the dippers, provided we don't drink a whole stomachful, we need have no fear of getting drunk. I move that each one takes a little—not enough to get drunk on." "That's so, that's so," say they all. And each one takes a dipper in his hand, and they drink a little all around when another of them says, "The fact is unless one drinks a stomachful and gets out and out drunk, sake is of no use. Besides it is hardly fair to say that the shōjō that have been killed up to this time and had their blood wrung out were killed simply because they got drunk. There! look down at your feet! There are even so many shoes made without cutting off the grass. They put on the shoes and danced a needless dance, and then tumbled over and were killed. Merely getting drunk has nothing dangerous about it." Thereupon the rest of the shōjō exclaim, "Oh! that's so! that's so! Even if we do get drunk we need n't be afraid of being beaten to death, if we don't put on the shoes. And if that is so, take enough to make you drunk." When they have guzzled down ever so many dipperfuls and are very drunk, strange to say, in spite of themselves they can not help wanting to put on the shoes—so it seems. Thereupon again all of them say, "I say! suppose we just put on the shoes. Even if we put them on, provided we don't dance, we need have no fear of tumbling over: so we'll just sing a song." Then they all just put on the shoes and sing beating time with their hands: and while they sing—so it seems—they get to feeling that they must beat time with their feet too. Thereupon another says, "What do you say? Suppose we beat time with our feet once taking care not to tumble?" Upon which all exclaim together, "Just so! that's the idea! we'll do it once, taking care not to tumble." And when they lift up their feet they just roll over, and then they are beaten to death, and their blood is drawn off. So the story goes.

NOTES.

Zen seki: former mat, i. e. the preceding lecture. Naru wa: naru no wa. Koko ni: in the text. Eki: a work which Confucius revised. Kotoba ni mo: Confucius reinforces his opinion by a quotation. Shimo . . . itaru: the meaning of Confucius is simply that the frost is the precursor of the ice: the preacher however reads into the quotation the idea of the formation of ice by pressure. To iute aru: it is said that.

Sori ya dō iu koto nareba: if it be asked, how is that? to make this clear, to explain. Gwanrai: in its natural state. Koru: to condense: to freeze is kōru. Tsumotta(no) wo: object of fumi-katameru. To iu koto ja: means that; that is the meaning.

Toki wa: wa suggests contrast: at birth it is so, afterwards it is different. O tagai ni: you and I alike, we.

Ware to iu mono wa : wa rather than ga suggests that whatever else one may have at birth, he has no ware. Ware is (1) consciousness of self—of the ego as opposed to the non-ego : (2) selfishness, i. e. the seeking to obtain one's desires without regard to harmony with the non-ego—without regard to one's environment. Sore wa sore wa : why! Miru ni tsuke : the more we see. Yara : ka. To iu koto : what we call. Ayamaru . . . hatenuru : a Buddhistic poem which the preacher accommodates to his philosophy. According to the philosophy of the Shingaku Michi preachers, all things are set in a certain environment. To live in harmony with that environment it to follow the michi or path. All things therefore have a michi to follow : it is the michi of the crow to caw, of the fish to swim, of the willow to be green : and with the exception of man all things follow their michi. Though man does not follow his michi, he should do so : for man has a honshin (sometimes rendered conscience) : and to obey the honshin is to follow the michi. The source of man's error is this : he mistakes the passing phenomena of the external world—the things which he perceives through the senses—for the unseen reality : what the preacher calls taking the shadow for the substance. The further man goes the more bewildered he becomes. The way back to the michi is obedience to the honshin : but the honshin is not what it once was, and the wanderer is without a trustworthy guide. The remedy is a course of Shingaku Michi no Hanashi.

Tsui ni : strengthens the negatives. Mita koto mo naku : never seen : compare page 138. Koto wa : koto is qualified by all that precedes from tsui ni, and is best rendered 'what.' Yō : way to, means of. Omoi yō mo nai ga : ga has only a slight connective force. Hikkyō: finds its source: see page 222. Kage-bōshi ga: ga rather than wa particularizes: it points out precisely what it is that becomes master. Wa would mean simply, 'and that shadow becomes': ga means, 'it is that shadow that becomes': so also of sore ga below. Sono shōko wa: in proof of that. Ishikawa Goemon: a celebrated robber who replied to Hideyoshi precisely as the robber replied to Alexander. He was boiled to death with his son, whom he held above his head as long as he could stand. Yōyō: hardly, barely, learned after many attempts. Karwairashii ko de atta mono: children (mono) of a sweet childhood. Chigai wa nai: wa strengthens the denial: whatever else may be doubtful, the fact stated is not so. Ku: see page 220. Sore ja ni yotte: sore da kara: and therefore, and so, then. Yō: yō ni. Imada: mada. To iute: it is said (in the old saying): rendered 'the old saying runs'. Fuku no kami: the god of good fortune. Gozaranu: for oide nasaranu. Bimbō-gami: the god of poverty. Sono ura de: conversely. To iute: it is said (in the saying). Konu ni mo seyo: konu to mo or konai de mo. Abunage wa: wa rather than ga brings out the idea that while there may be other things, e. g. darkness apprehension et cetera, there is no danger. Chōchin-mochi wa: wa suggests something like jibun wa saki ni understood. Sore ni tsuite: in connection with this, in illustration of this, in point. Koko ni: here is, there is, I have.

Shōjō-hi: here not the red color, but the cloth dyed with the color. Shōjō: fabulous apes that live in the ocean. Someta no ga: ga particularizes. Wa would mean simply, 'the shōjō-hi that is dyed with shōjō blood is genuine': ga means, 'it is that which is the genuine': hence the inversion in the rendering. To ka iimasu : ka weakens the assertion, making the difference between 'they say' and 'they say.' Mō : also, among other things : they do other things like men besides talking. Te ni awanu : hard to beat, hard to get ahead of. Omae no te ni awanu : he is more than a match for you. Kagasuru : kagaseru. Izure : certain. Chanto shitte orimasu : understand perfectly. Kara : and so. Ikutsu mo : ever so many, a lot of. Sono atari ni : around. Hae nari : just as it grows, i. e. without cutting it off. Bannin wa : wa perhaps makes the picture more graphic by contrasting the bannin looking on from a distance and the shōjō coming closer and closer. To miete : so it seems.

Kori ya ! nani ka et cetera : not, 'does n't this smell good?' but as rendered. Kano sake : kano and also rei no usually have the force of 'that' or 'the,' in referring to something already mentioned, previously conversed about, known to be in the mind of the person addressed, or generally notorious. Rei no ō taimatsu wo tomose to gōi nasareta, he ordered him to light the (or those) torches, i. e. the houses as already understood between them : kano sake is that well known sake used by the hunters. Are : it. Oite : and then. Uchi-korosō to iu : to iu unites what precedes to osoroshii keiryaku, which it qualifies : hence the rendering 'a trap to get et cetera.' To iu to : when he said, thereupon. Ao-kusai : the odor from green vegetation of any kind : here, sea-weedy, sedgy. Yori wa : enough better than that any how. Kagu bakari wa : wa suggests contrast : it would not be safe to taste it, but it is quite safe to smell it. Kite miru to : when they came : rendered 'came, and.' Kori ya : why! Ah! Tamaranu : can not stand this, can not stop here, can not resist the temptation to do more. To : to itte: exclaimed. Urouro shi oru: kept loitering. The participle followed by oru or iru sometimes expresses completed action; the stem followed by either of them always expresses continued action: the participle however is much more common in Tōkyō. Mata: another. Nomō ja aru-mai ka: suppose we take: nomō ja nai ka? let's take. Te wa: wa rather than wo emphasizes te: they might smell it, but it would never do to handle it. Ottotte: snatched up: stronger than totte. To iu to: when he said, thereupon. Ikasama: naruhodo: of course, just so, quite true, to be sure, very likely, I see, really. Gurai wa: to that extent, that and no more, merely. Zuibun yokarō: quite safe. To: to itte. Namete miru to: like kite miru to above. Mata: additional, very. Pisshari pisshari: smacking. Dōmo: kō: thus, in this way. Ja: de wa: if: see page 232. Ima: mō. Ima hito iki taranu: one breath more is lacking, a hair beside the mark, not quite satisfactory. Yō na: yō na mono da or yō da: sort of thing, seems so, feel as if, have the sensation of. Mi no ke ga yodatsu yō da to feel one's hair stand on end, me ga tobi-deru yō da to feel one's eyes start out, hagayui yō da to feel one's teeth grind. Nomu to iute mo: nonde mo. You kizukai wa: wa suggests contrast: there might be danger of something else, e. g. getting into a frolic; but there would be no danger of getting actually drunk. Yowanu gurai: not get drunk quantity, not enough to get drunk on. To iu to: to iu to itte. To: to itte. Shimasu ni wa: wa in such expressions has something the force of 'as follows,' 'the following,' 'thus:' and is frequently best left untranslated. Sake to iu mono: to iu mono is often added in generalizing; e. g. inu to iu mono wa chūgi no aru mono da. Sen nai koto: sen mo nai koto da : To iu de mo nai : de mo weakens the denial : it is hardly fair to say. Koshiraete aru : have been made. Kowai koto wa nai : wa suggests some such contrast as, it may be very foolish but it is not dangerous. Nome to : nome to itte. Otsu na mono de : myō na mono de, kitai na mono de, hen na mono de : strange to say, it is a remarkable fact that. Dō de mo : dō shite mo : do what they might, in spite of themselves. Kutsu ga : ga rather than wo particularizes the shoes as precisely the things that they wished to here, put on. Naranu : tamaranu. Sōna : sō na mono da or sō da. Korobu kizukai wa : wa suggests the contrast; whatever else may happen there will be no danger of tumbling over. To : to itte. Ashi-byōshi ga : ga instead of wo, as in kutsu ga hakitakute above. Naranu yō ni naru : tamaranu yō ni naru, as in ima hito iki taranu yō na above : got to feeling what they could n't stand it. Korobanu yō ni : so as not, taking care not to. Ichido ni : together. Yarō to : yarō to itte. Korori to koronde wa : toppled over, rolled over : they were so drunk that they could not stand up any longer. Wa following a participle sometimes has the force of 'because,' 'as,' 'when,' 'and then' : ō zakenonde wa suikyō suru, he would drink to excess and then become violent. To iu koto ja : it is said that, so the story goes.

Sono koto wa : wa rather than wo suggests the contrast, that I do not know something else however I know. Ima wa : a good many nowadays, whether there were any formerly I do not know.

Confucius stood upon the bank of a river and watched the flowing of the water. And he said, "It may be that the impermanent is thus: day and night it pauses not."

Of all things that appear in this world (to use the familiar language of Buddhism) there is none that escapes the four sorrows of shō rō byō and shi. As a single example of this, let us take the story of this kimono that I have on.

To begin: When the kimono, was made that may be regarded as the shō—the birth of the kimono. Then as it grows shabbier and shabbier, that may be regarded as the rō—the old age of the kimono. Then as the edge of the skirt becomes frayed and the shoulders thin, that may be regarded as the byō—the disease of the kimono. The maid washes it ever so often, patches it darns it and mends it in all sorts of ways. But at last when it is "all over with it" and it is nothing but rags she says, "This is past saving:" and stuffs it into the rag-bag. That may be regarded as the shi—the death of the kimono. Here again however regarded as a kimono it is death: but regarded as rags it is birth. From this it follows that one should perceive that strictly speaking birth and death are essentially one.

Yumi wo iru ya ga kū wo hashiru wo ya no ato kara ieba, mukō ye sugite yuki oru yue, shinuru to iwanya naranu yō na mono ja ga; mato no hō kara ieba, sottchi ye ki oru yue, umareru to iwanya naranu. Yuku to kuru to ga futatsu de mo nai ga, umareru to shinuru to ga betsu na mono de wa nai no ja. Soko de koko ni Kōshi Sama ga o deshi no Kiro ye no o shimeshi ni, "Imada sei wo shirazu: izukunzo shi wo shiran" to ōserareta.

*Itsu ka mata Yo ni idenu koto wa

nado iu yō na jukkwaī de mo yonde oru yara mo shiremasenu.

Iya! mata yo no naka to iu mono wa sono yō ni tansoku suru mono de mo nai ja. Jisetsu ga kuru to, boro-tsuzura kara hiki-dasarete zōkin to iu mono ni shō wo kaemasu ga. Sore mo mata boro kara ieba, shinuru

A bow is shot, the arrow speeds through the air. Looking at this from behind the arrow, it is going; and therefore it might be spoken of as death: but looking at it from the mark, it is coming towards it; and therefore must be spoken of as birth. Of all things going and coming are not two: nor are birth and death different. And therefore in his explanation to his disciple Kiro, in the passage here quoted, Confucius said, "We know not yet life: how then shall we know death?"

Well, next the rags are put into the rag-bag and set away in some corner of the godown: and the old pieces of juban and bits of obi and odds and ends of all kinds come together and tell one another the story of their lives. And perhaps they will compose poems of the heart, such for example as

Whether some time again
I shall go forth into the world.
Night and day not knowing
I pass my time. Poor me!

Oh no! Nor is the world is a place so to sigh in either. When the time comes (the rag) is drawn out of the rag-bag and changes its form into that of a house-cloth. And here again regarded as rags it is death: regarded as a house-cloth it is birth.

Again in turn the house-cloth also every time it is used grows older— (what we call rō): and then this too gets the tatters and is good for nothing. And then (the maid) says “This is past saving now,” and tosses it into the rubbish heap. That is the funeral of the house-cloth. Well as to the house-cloth too, regarded as a house-cloth it is death: but regarded as rubbish it is birth. Again in turn some farmer takes the rubbish and makes it into a fertilizer for his rice field. And when he makes it into a fertilizer for the field, the rubbish ferments and decays: and by means of that the rice or the wheat thrives, and so the rice or the wheat produced may be regarded as a real new birth of the house-cloth. And when in turn some one lives upon the rice or wheat, he may be said also to live and speak by means of the house-cloth: and so he begets a child. And the child likewise may safely be said to be a new birth of the house-cloth.

All these however are things that are actually visible: and so the four sorrows of shō rō byō shi strike the eye in the way described. But even of the things without form that appear in this world there is not one that escapes these four sorrows. Why! consider even such things as sounds and scents. The sound of the temple bell say for example: When it first rings out gōn! that is the birth of the sound: then when it prolongs into on-on-on! that is the old age of the sound: after that when the sound grows faint and says wan-wan! that is now the disease of the sound: and when it has died away, that is the death of the sound.

Thus the river of nature hastens by: and so this world keeps moving on. And therefore simply because it desires to make this known, Buddhism employs the temple bells. And it inscribes on them the four phrased sentence that Gautama Buddha is supposed to have heard from the spirits in the mountains:—

All phenomena are impermanent:

This is the law of becoming and perishing.

Becoming and perishing shall perish completely:

And the calm perishing (i. e. Nirvana) will be bliss.

And striking them all through the twice six hours, it deigns to bid us, "Hark! gōn-gōn! thus ever fleeting!"

Sho gyō mu-jō means, of all things in this world whatsoever they may be not one abides. And it is even so. When we fancy it is Spring, it is Summer; when we fancy it is Summer, it is Autumn; when we fancy it is day-break, it is sunset; when we fancy one is coming, he is gone; when we fancy one is standing, he is seated; when we fancy one is speaking, he is silent; there is nothing that has permanence. Precisely that is the river of nature—the way of birth and death: and so it has been called ze shō meppō.

And yet ordinary people, when they speak of their birth, are prone to think of it as something away back twenty or thirty years, something that happened long ago. Or if they speak of their death they think of it only as a time still far in the future when this body shall have fallen down limp. And therefore the idea that the michi is a michi for the present they can never comprehend. Poor things! In illustration of this I have an amusing story to tell you.

NOTES.

Kōshi sama mo: Confucius also: Confucius once expressed the views of the preacher. Kaku no gotoki ka: ka weakens the assertion: rendered, 'it may be.'

Nan de aro to (mo): nan de mo. Kano: frequently used like rei no for that in the sense of the familiar, the well known: see page 243. De iu toki wa: if one speaks with, to use the language of. Shō, rō, byō, shi: birth, old age disease, death. The original words are transferred to the translation, because the preacher expounds them. Nogaruru mono wa: wa rather than ga suggests the contrast, whatever else there may be in the world there is nothing that escapes et cetera. Sore: of this. Hitotsu: as a single example. Koto : the story of. Iute miru to : if we take, let us take.

Dekita tokoro ga : had wa been used rather than ga, the statement would answer the question what is the dekita tokoro? ga being employed the statement answers the question which is the dekita tokoro? i. e. it points out precisely which stage in the history of the kimono corresponds to birth. The point is brought out in English by inserting an emphatic that. Shō : the preacher uses the Chinese and gives the Japanese equivalent for the benefit of his audience. To iu : may be regarded as. Yōjō aikanawazu : it is all over : an expression used when at last a person dies. Shiyō (or shikata) ga nai : unavoidable, hopeless, beyond one's resources, beyond saving. Kore mo : literally this also : mo suggests the fact that other things also pass through a similar experience. Kyōgai : the boundary line (here between kimono and boro), literally 'if we speak from the kimono side of the line (i. e. regarded as a kimono), it is death'. Kore kara kore : the second kore might be dropped. Gwanrai : strictly speaking. Itsu ri no mono : all one, essentially the same. To iu koto : the fact that, that.

Hashiru (no) wo : the object of ieba : if we speak of the flight of the arrow et cetera. As frequently it is simpler in English to begin a new sentence; hence the rendering looking at this et cetera. Iwanya : iwanakereba. Yōna mono : yō na weakens the assertion, changing 'must' into 'might'. Yuku to kuru to ga : ga rather than wa particularizes coming and going as being of all things the things that are not essentially different. De mo : nor. Koko ni : Imada.....shiran : a quotation from the Analects of Confucius. The preacher reads his own thought into the quotation. The natural interpretation of the quotation is: we know not life and therefore we can not know death, since death is mere mysterious than life. According to the preacher, the quotation means: we know not life and therefore we can not know death, for life and death are the same thing only looked at from different angles of view. If one know one, he would know the other.

Sate sore kara: well, next. Migi no: see page 219. Yara: ka. Mi no ue wo kataru: to tell the story of one's life: mi no ue hanashi, one's personal history. Katari-ai: ai is often added to the stem of a verb with the force of mutually, together, one another. Kataito: the pillow word of yoru: kataito means also a kind of thread: yoru means both might and also to twist. For makura kotoba or pillow words, see Aston's Grammar of the written Language, pages 210—212. Nado iu yō na: such as.

Jukkwai: a poem expressive of one's feelings. De mo: for example, say. Yonde iru: here, compose. The rags pass away time in composing poems in the Japanese fashion. Yara mo shiremasenu: ka mo shiremasenu.

Iya: the preacher dissents from such a gloomy view of existence. Mata.....de mo nai: not.....either, nor. Shō: form or nature. Sore mo mata: here again. Sono mata: next, in turn. Tabitabi ni: tambi ni. To ato ni wa: when and not before, then. Chirigire-chirigire no byōki: pieces-sickness: rendered, the tatters. To: when, and then. Mō: now, at last. Gomokuba: in Tōkyō, gomisuteba or gomidame. Hōka suru: in Tōkyō, utcharu. Sore ga: ga rather than wa particularizes: it shows which or precisely what stage in the existence of the kimono corresponds to sickness. Sei: cause, means, because of, that is why : Shimeri ga nai sei ka, I suppose it is because there is no moisture : jikō ni makemashita sei darō, it must be because of giving way to the temperature : furui ie no sei ka shite, I suppose it is because it is so old : sono sei ka shite, perhaps that is why : atsusa no sei ka to omou, I attribute it to the heat. Magai mo nai : genuine. Umarekawari : re-birth, new birth. To iu yō na mono ja : may be called, may be regarded as. Itte mo daiji nai yō na mono ja : even if it be said to be et cetera, it is a no harm sort of thing ; i. e. it may safely be said.

Ganzen ni : before the eye : rendered, 'actually.' Katachi no me ni mieru : visible. Sono tōri : in the way described. Sori ya : why! (introductory to proof). Gorōjiro : goran nasai. Nado : say. De mo : for example. Tokoro ga : ga has the particularizing force already referred to. Toshi no yoru no : toshi no yoru no de.

Ryūkō : flowing, going, passing, transient, fashion : rendered 'river.' Sore ni tsurete : conformable to that, and so. Ugoki-toru : move on. Nyorai is a generic term for Buddha : hence Amida Nyorai and Shaka Nyorai : Shaka Nyorai is Gautama Buddha. To ka iu : ka weakens the statement : rendered, 'supposed to have.'

Shō (all) gyō (phenomena) mu (not) jō (permanent) ze (this) shō (becoming) metsu (destruction) hō (law) shō (becoming) metsu (destruction) metsu (destruction) i (done) jaku (calm) metsu (destruction) i (becomes) raku (bliss). The lines are difficult to translate. For a slightly different rendering, and also for an account of the incident referred to, see the Introduction of Satow and Hawes' Handbook for Japan, pages 77—79. Ni roku ji : according to the old style the day was divided into twelve (not twenty four) hours.

To wa : to is the sign of quotation, and is constantly used when repeating an expression just employed. Nan de arō to : nan de arō to mo. Hitotsu to shite : hitotsu mo. Todomaru to iu koto wa nai : wa rather than ga suggests the contrast, whatever else there may be there is nothing that abides. To iu koto ja : means. Ka to omou : to fancy that. Sore ga : ga rather than wa particularizes : see page 221. Jiki ni : here equivalent to sunawachi.

Sore wo : and yet : as here, wo at times has an adversitive force. Bompu is the unenlightened man of Buddhism, and shōjin is the opposite of the kunshi or the superior man of Confucianism. Here as frequently the terms are about equivalent to common people or the average man. Dōmo : here equivalent to 'prone'. Ganyari : used of wilted flowers. To iu koto : that.

FOR LIFE.

Aru tokoro ni ōzakenonde wa suikyō In a certain place there was an idle nuru nora-musuko ga atta tokoro; oya son who would drink to excess, and ga ōki ni kurō ni omōte, aru hi musuko then become violent. His father felt ye imasu ni wa, "Sonata no sake wa very anxious about it and one day said that I am so fond of—that is asking too much. I will however give up the use of it for two or three years: and I beg you to let me off with that.” But his father would hear of nothing of the kind: “No!” said he. “Considering the bad effect that sake has upon you, with anything like two or three years of abstinence I could have no peace of mind: and therefore I am determined that you shall not drink sake as long as you live.” Accordingly the son was more and more perplexed, and kept ransacking his brain (for something to propose). Presently a new idea seemed to strike him. He put his hands down on the mat and said: “You are quite right! And as to giving it up for life—I agree to that positively. But when I think that for the rest of my life I am not to drink my darling sake, somehow or other it seems as if my strength had failed and I feel perfectly used up. And besides since to-day at last is the day when I am to bid to sake a life-long farewell, I think you might excuse me for this one day—just to say good bye.” His father also thought that that was reasonable. “Well then,” he charged him, “For this one day you have my permission to drink: from to-morrow positively you will give it up for life.” Then on a large sheet of paper and in a bold hand he wrote down for him, “Abstinence for life.” The son read it over and said, “Hereafter I will positively stick to this to the very letter: for life I will drink sake no more. But meanwhile as I have your consent for to-day, please write down on this side, 'However: to-day it is permitted: from to-morrow.'" This also his father thought reasonable and wrote it down for him. And then the son covered the whole back of it with paste, struck it fast to the pillar before one on entering the house and left it there.

That day all day long he drank: and likewise the next day also he took his sake from the morning on. His father was greatly surprised, and said to him "Yesterday as you know I gave you positive orders about giving up drinking for life: and I actually wrote out that placard for you. And now what is the reason you are not sticking to what is written?" When he scolded him in this way, the son replied, "Oh! I beg your pardon! I am sticking to the very letter of it." His father was still more angry. "But there you are drinking: are you not?" said he. "Excuse me," he replied, "on the placard itself it is written 'To-day it is permitted': and so to-day I drink. My abstaining is for life beginning with to-morrow." So saying, that day also he drank. And the next day too he said, "Pray excuse me for to-day;" and then he drank. And the abstaining for life he never did at all. Such is the story. And very likely ignorant people like you and me, just as this son, will say, "I also for life intend to give my parents and the rest of them peace of mind, but to-day I beg to be excused." And then they put their parents in a fever of anxiety. "For life I also intend to serve my master faithfully" (they say), "but to-day I beg to be excused." And then they neglect their duties. "For life I also purpose to be diligent, but for the present I beg to be excused," they say. And then they spend their time in idleness. "For life I also intend to learn the michi, but now I beg to be excused," they say. And then they live without a purpose, saying only with their lips, "for life, for life." Out in the world there are many such. But this "for life"—what does it mean? After all does it not mean the present moment? More than that, it is precisely the present moment that is "for life," and it is ever dying. To put this matter to you once more and accurately. These bodies of ours, as I have already said, are things borrowed from this air of heaven. And they are precisely the things that are mere loans to be paid in yearly payments. The man who dies at twenty has borrowed (to pay in) twenty yearly payments: the man who dies at thirty has borrowed to pay in thirty yearly payments: the man who dies at fifty may be regarded as one of fifty yearly payments: the man who dies at seventy, as one of seventy yearly payments: Urashima Tarō as one of eight thou-and Tōbōsaku as one of nine thousand yearly payments. In the method of arranging the yearly payments—whether they shall be few or many—there is a slight difference, and that is all. In any case they are loans to be paid in yearly payments: and therefore while we are employed as we are now, hour by hour moment by moment we are making our payments to our creditors.

Already this morning, for example, in dressing my hair, a number of hairs came out. That hair, I can never return again to my body: and therefore to that extent there is no doubt at all that this body is mine has now died. And so if we should treat this too with due respect, I suppose we should have to have a regular funeral over it. And on that principle we should say "I have lost a hair," and then have a funeral. We should say "I have lost a tooth," and then have a funeral. We should say "I have pared my nails," and then have a funeral. And, if we carried out the principle, at last we should have to have a funeral even when the scab of the moxa drops off. And therefore when we loose a hair we go with it between our fingers out to the edge of the veranda, and end the matter with a whiff from the tips of our lips for the indō. However it does not wander to and fro, it seems: and so we never hear anything about the ghosts of hairs or teeth appearing and so forth.

Thus hour by hour moment after moment are we paying back our bodies to the creditor. And when our yearly payment account is all settled, (Tentōsama) says “Twice one are—your account is all settled. I congratulate you.” Then he draws his pen across his book. And then we are borne to the family temple on the shoulders of the bearers. And it is “Namu kara tannō,” and “Changan garan don.” And that is the sound of flinging down his soroban.

And yet even when they hear such sounds, common people think of it as only the settling of the yearly payments of some one else. They themselves are something like a crowbar. And so they say, “What shall I do in the Spring? In the Autumn I will do so and so. What shall I do next year? The year after next I will do so and so. And recklessly building castles in the air, they neglect the essential present. What a piece of folly! In the poems of Jikwai Sōjō:

NOTES.

Ōzake nonde wa: see page 245. Nora-musuko: so also nora-neko, a 'fence' cat. Tokoro: employed as a connective: the preacher might have said ga. Sonata.....sake ja: the idea of the Japanese is expressed in the translation: more literally rendered, "your (drinking of) sake is a (drinking of) sake having a very bad effect:" compare anata no yumi wa jitsu ni go jōzu da, you are very skilful with your bow. Hodo ni: kara. Ai strengthens tsutsushimi. Itashimasei: itashimase: the imperative, rendered 'must.' Shōgai: for life. Mōshita tokoro: mōshitareba. Mciwaku suru: komaru. He was in a quandary because on the one hand he could not give up sake, and on the other he could not disobey his father. Watakushi ga: watakushi no. Are hodo: so. Iwassarū (ossharū) no wa: with regard to your saying, for you to say. Kara: because, and therefore, and. Sore de: with that. Tokoro: ga. Aku-shō: vicious nature, bad effect. Wa: as to, considering. Gurai de: with that quantity, with anything like. Anshin wa: wa rather than ga suggests the contrast that whatever else might be said in favor of the proposition it would bring him no peace of mind. Dō de mo: rendered, I am determined. Sake wa: wa rather than wo suggests the contrast, whatever else you may drink you shall not drink sake.

Nanto (or dō) omoi kaeta yara (or ka): somehow he changed his mind, a new idea seemed to strike him: literally, How did he re-think? i.e. I do not know the process that went on in his mind (but obviously something had taken place). Nani wo omotte iru ka? means 'what are you thinking about?' Nanto (or dō) omotte iru ka? means 'what do you think of it?' Watakushi mo: mo brings out the idea that the son had an interest in the matter as well as his father. Dō yara: somehow. Kyō ga: ga rather than wa particularizes to-day as the day. Hence the statement is not rendered 'to-day I am to bid farewell et cetera,' but 'to-day is the day when et cetera.' Kyō wa watakushi no tanjōbi da means 'to-day is my birthday,' and answers the question What is to-day? Kyō ga watakushi no tanjōbi da means 'to-day is my birthday,' and answers the question When is your birthday? Sake to (or ni) wa: not the ordinary farewell to one's parents but a farewell to sake: hence wa. Nareba: since. Semete no nagori ni: just for a good bye. So one says to a guest, semete mō ichi nichi o tomari nasai, stay just one day longer. Kyō ichi nichi wa: wa suggests the contrast, only for to-day not for to-morrow. Nomasu beshi: nomasō. Mōshitsuke: charged. Kono tōri: this way, i. e. to the very letter. Tadashi: added to documents to call attention to exceptions et cetera. Kaite yarimashita toko-ro: kaite yarimashitareba: wrote it for him. Musuko wa: wa suggests the contrast, others might have done differently—put it away in a drawer for example; he did so and so. Sore: the paper. Bettari to: not a little on each corner, but all over the back. Oyaji wa: others might not have been, his father was surprised: hence wa rather than ga. Kanete: already, as you know: kanete mōshiageta tōri, as I have already said, as you are now aware. Koto: koto (wo). Made: he went beyond a more verbal agreement: rendered, 'actually.' Yatta ni: yatta no ni. Ano tōri: that way, i. e. as written. Sore de mo: but. Iya: no, I beg your pardon, excuse me. Nonde de wa nai ka: nonde iru de wa nai ka. Harifuda ni mo: on the placard also, not merely in their verbal agreement: rendered, 'on the placard itself.' To gozareba: to kaite gozareba. To iute: so saying. To iute wa: he said, and then: see page 245.

Shōjin: see page 254. Ore mo: I also (as well as others), I myself. Shōgai ni wa: in contrast with kyō wa: hence wa. Oyatachi ni mo: my parents also, i. e. as well as others—my wife and children for example. Kimo wo irase: literally, bake their gall. Hōkō wo taisetsu ni suru: serve faithfully. Ki de oru: purpose. Ukauka: without any fixed purpose. Seken ni wa: wa suggests the contrast, out in the world it is so, in the audience it is quite different. Aru mono ja: there are.

To: sign of quotation employed in repeating shōgai. Itsu no koto zo: best rendered, 'what does it mean?' Yahari: here, after all. Sono mata: more than that. Tadaima tadaima ga: ga rather than wa particularizes, identifies, selects: it is precisely the present that et cetera; the present, that et cetera. Koto wo: the object of o hanashi mōsō. As frequently, it is simpler in English to begin a new sentence. Ima: mō. Sore ga: ga as above with tadaima: it is precisely they that et cetera; they of all things are the things that et cetera. Chōdo yō na: just like, mere. Ni shite: as, in. Urashima Tarō: a Japanese said to have lived for eight thousand years. Tōbōsaku: a Chinaman. To iu yō na: may be regarded as.

Konchō mo : this morning also, as well as on other days, for example, say. Kamige : in Tōkyō, kami no ke. To iu koto wa : whatever else he can do, he can not do that : hence wa rather than ga. Are hodo wa : not entirely, but to that extent : hence wa. Kore mo : this too, this as we treat other parts of the body—an arm say. Taisō na koto ni suru : to treat with due respect. De mo : even; rendered, 'a regular.' Yō na mono ja : yō na weakens the statement : rendered, 'I suppose.' Sono yō ni : in that way, on that principle. To iute wa : say, and then : see page 245. Shi oru : continued action : rendered, 'carry out.' Mā : say, not to mention other things. Gurai wa : that quantity of death (not an arm say, or the whole body) : best rendered by 'when' followed by emphasis on hair. Kurai no : that quantity of, to serve as, for. Indō : the address of the priest guiding the dead man to Gokuraku, and without which he would wander though the world a ghost. The puff guides the hair whither it should go. Sore de mo : however. The rites though simple are sufficient. Mayoi mo : wander, say. Mo suggests that ghosts have other disagreeable duties to perform. Ka : weakens the statement : rendered, 'it seems.' Shite : and so. Tsui ni : never. To iu koto : (hear) about. Mo : also, among other things, and so forth. Soragoto : false, because dew is far too enduring a thing to compare the body to. Ni ichi ten saku : Tentō Sama is represented as making out the account on his soroban. Rendered literally the words mean, 'two (into) one above make'..... Ten is the upper part of the soroban. This is one of the first things a child learns in learning the use of the soroban. Hence it is like saying in English, 'twice one are'.....

Medetaku kashiku : employed at the close of letters written by women ; and a stereotyped way of saying, no bad news. Here, I congratulate you. Namu kara tannō : words from the funeral liturgy. Chan garan don : the sound of the funeral music. Are ga : the preacher has been identifying the various things, telling which is which : hence ga rather than wa.

Ano yō na oto : i. e. the sound of a funeral service. Yoso ni : some where else : here, some one else. Waga mi : he himself. Suru no to : suru no to itte. Kokū wo tsukamu : to grasp the air, be visionary, build castles in the air. Sō-jō : a title conferred upon priests : usually upon men in charge of a large temple or a number of temples. Ima ga : ga has the particularizing identifying force so often referred to : wa would answer the question, What is the present? ga answers the question, When are we in the midst of death? when are we dying?

of his head, and was on his way home humming a song. On starting out however, when his mother sent him to the shop, it seems that she sent him off saying that he was to buy the husks and come back without letting people see them on the way—or some thing of that kind.

In such places as Yedo I suppose this never happens, but out in the country it occurs frequently. The father is poor, and the children are numerous; and they can hardly live from day to day. Such humble people get along by mixing in these tōfu husks to eke out their rice. And there are ever so many people of that kind. And yet such persons are extremely ashamed of being seen buying the husks.

Accordingly this mother's saying that he was not to let people see them by the way was also of a piece with this. To her mind, if his companions in the neighborhood should chance to see the boy coming home with the husks, they might perhaps suppose that he was one of the boys whose families are poor and who never have anything to eat but tōfu husks. And if so, even if the boy should afterwards go out among his companions, he would shrink away from them or would be looked down upon or be treated as a dunce: and such being the case—with a mind full of all sorts of suspicions—it would seem that she told him what she did.

However the boy carrying the basket with the husks on the top of his head said to a lot of his companions playing together, "Here! here! all of you come here. What has I put in this basket that I have? See whether you can tell." Thereupon his companions there came clattering up in a crowd and one of the boys said, "I'll guess it for you. It must be beans." Upon which the boy with the basket shook his head and said, "No! it is not beans: it is not beans." Another one of the boys said, "I'll guess it for you. It is red beans: red beans." "No! it is not red beans either: it is not red beans either." Another of the boys said, "It is miso: it is miso." "No! it is not miso either: it is not miso either," said he. And try their best none of them could guess that it was husks. And so the boy with the basket said, "Pshaw! none of you can tell. Why! it is tōfu husks." Thereupon a lot of the boys called out together, "Oh I say! really is it husks? Then take down the basket and let us see inside." "No!" said he, "I can't let you see inside." "Why won't you let us see inside?" said they. "Because my mother told me to bring them home without showing them to people." Oh the heart of a child—how innocent, how pure it is! Moreover when I told this story at a certain place the man to whom I was talking said to me, "Oh! that is quite what one might expect. Children everywhere are innocent things. In our neighborhood also we had just such an occurrence." "How was that?" I asked. This also, was a story of a poor boy.

The parents were very poor: their condition was such that they actually had no spare clothing in the family. Therefore even when New Year's time came the mother could not even wash for the children. At last in the Spring, some time in the third month, she looked out for a fine day and said to the boy, "To-day I am going to wash your clothes for you: and so you are to stay at home and not go out of doors." So saying she took off his clothes. Thereupon the boy being naked and shivering all over said to her, "Mamma, I am cold." "Oh! well then," said she, "just wrap yourself up in that futon or anything else." Accordingly the boy said, "Very well:" took the futon that was there, pulled it up over his back leaving only his head out, and was sitting down. Just then four or

 mother is telling such a fib. Why!
 it is not because I have taken any more and more worried thought to herself, "Pshaw! this boy is a—" and while she was thinking so once more the boy said, "None of you can tell, so I will turn back the end of the futon and let you see myself."

 At this even his mother could contain herself no longer and gave him a look that said, "Pshaw! confound the boy! stop that sort of tomfoolery!" But even so, as he still did not understand, he would turn back the end of the futon a little and then say, "Look here!" and again he would turn it back and then say,
 "Look here!" Accordingly all the boys saw that he was undressed, and exclaimed, "Why! he has no clothes on, has he?" And they asked him
 "Why are you all undressed in such cold weather?" "Come! said he, see whether you can tell that too." And so all the boys answered, "Why is that? We don't know." At which the boy said, "Well then I will tell verb they say, "When a boy gets to be seven years old he is hated over seven villages"—or something like that. Really however if we compare the heart of a child with that of any one of us. Oh! how pure it is! how free from turmoil! It is precisely that pure characterless state that Confucianism means by sunnum bonum, what Buddhism means by the real Nirvana: it is that plane of mind to which all his life long man should strive—the peaceful pure land.

Moreover in childhood each and every one of us was such a being. Our bodies were active leaping and springing about, but our hearts were in a deep slumber. But as childhood added year to year and our bodies grew in stature, we were disturbed in our sleep by the sights that meet the eye and the sounds that strike the ear: and one day we were shaken out of slumber. And then at last we awaked to consciousness of self. From that time on we began to wander panting and bewildered. "Myself and himself," "loss and gain," "the worst of it and the best of it," "right and wrong," "in the light and in the dark," "a demon and a Buddha," "hell and heaven." With such words as these on our lips, amid the imaginary we wander hither and thither in a flutter: and all our lives long we never have a mind at rest.

NOTES.

Aru : a certain, one of the. Machi-bata : machi-hazure. Bimbōnin no ko : bimbōnin no ko da. For a poor child, the Japanese do not say bimbō no ko but bimbōnin no ko. To miete : what seemed. Toshi mo : mo brings out the idea that he was young as well as poor. Gurai : quantity, about, some. Kara : the husks of the beans left in making the tōfu. Itta no : itta no da. Miete : apparently. Takaku : up. Mōdori orimashita : the participle followed by oru or iru sometimes expresses completed action; the stem followed by oru or iru always expresses action continuing. Hajime : on starting out. Toki : toki ni. To de mo iute : de mo weakens the statement, changing 'saying' into 'saying something of the kind' or 'with some such directions as'. Miemasu ja : it seems. Oya ga : wa would suggest that the children (or some one else) are rich. Kodomo wa : wa suggests some such contrast as kane wa nai. Ōshi : ōku aru shi. Kyō : to-day, i.e. from day to day. Kui-kaneru : can hardly live. To iu yō na : such. Here again it is simpler in English to begin a new sentence. Tashi ni : to eke out. Kāte oru : get along. Aru koto de gozarimasu : there are. Kuse ni : frequently equivalent to and yet preceding a statement of inconsistency with some discreditable trait. Okubyō na kuse ni yo-aruki wa suki da, he is a coward and yet he is found of going out at night. Compare Satow's Kaiwa Hen, 17, 16. Erai : greatly, extremely. Hito ni : of being seen. These husks are frequently eaten by those who are not poor, and there is therefore no real reason why poor people should be ashamed to eat them : they generally are however. That is the point which the preacher wishes to make. Mo yahari : she was like other poor people. Shizen mita nara : should chance to see. Are mo : he also, he was one of. Tsune ni.....sodatsu : grow up always eating, never had anything to eat but. De mo omou ka : de mo and ka both weaken the statement : rendered, ' might perhaps.' Kono nochi : afterwards, in after life. Kata ga semai : shrink away. No : or. Ganka ni mirareru : be seen from below the eye, be looked down upon. To iu yō na koto de : and such being the case.

Tokoro ga : however. Ko wa : wa rather than ga contrasts the action of the boy with that of the mother. Ye mukatte iimasu ni wa : said to. Kō! kō : kore! kore! Naka ni wa : wa here adds little or nothing. Iimasu ja : ja adds nothing. Yotte : together, in a crowd. Mishō : miseyō. Mata hitori no : another. To iu koto : that it was. Yō : could. Sō shimashitara : and so. Yō iute de nai : in Tōkyō, ienai. Ni : why! Miseru koto wa naranu : wa suggests the contrast, he might talk about it but he must not show it. Sori ya : sore wa : as to that, that is because, because. Uchi no : my : Uchi no inu, our dog. Ninga no hedate no nai : no difference between others (nin) and one's self (ga), unsuspecting, innocent. Na : ne. Mise wa senu : might talk about but would not show. Oboe no nai koto : a thing which did not appeal to his feelings, that he did not appreciate, did not see the point of, that found no response in him.

Mukō no jin : the man to whom I was talking. Iya moshi : not surprising, quite to be expected. Josai no nai : commonly, clever : here, unsuspecting, unsophisticated, innocent. Watakushi ga : watakushi no. Kore : the story, not the boy. Sō de gozarimasu : it seems.

Kigae: change of clothing, spare clothing. Mo: even; rendered, 'actually.' Shiawase: condition, lot. Shōgatsu: the Japanese usually buy new clothes at New Year: but this family was so poor that the mother could not even wash the clothes the children were wearing, because she had no extra clothing for them to wear meanwhile. Senta-ku shite yaru: wash for them. Goro: some time. Hodo ni: because, and so. Sochi ga: sochi no. To iute: so saying. Kakasan: in Tōkyō, okkasan. Nari to: nari to mo: say, for example, or any thing else. Sono: the. Senaka kara: from, i.e. up over his back. Zurede: in a crowd, in a party. To iu to: when they said. Wae: an expletive. To iu to: when he said, thereupon. Ki wo monde: worrying, fidgeting. Uchi: meanwhile. Yobimasu to: when they called, called . . . and. To iu kara: because he said, at this. Haya: conveys the idea of 'before she could do any thing to prevent it.' Doya doya to: chattering. Hata kara: soba kara: breaking in, interrupting. Nirānde misete: gave him a look. To iu wo: to iu no wo: object of totte. Are mo: he also: implying that colds were prevalent in the neighborhood. De.....: nete oru 'he is lying down' would probably have followed, but Man interrupts. Uso wo iute ja: uso wo iute oru. Ni: why! Kono ko wa.....: something like baka is to be understood. Yō iute de nai: in Tōkyō, ienai. Hahaoya mo: even his mother: -i.e. though mothers are proverbially patient. Akete wa: he would open, and then: see page 245. Ari ya: why! Kono nii: kono niisan: literally elder brother. No ni: inasmuch as, as, since, seeing that. Sono toki: sore kara, soko de: thereupon, at which.

tical; here, unsuspecting, innocent, out-spoken, straight forward. Sore de mo nakanaka: really however. Meimeci domo: any of us. Sore wa: neither it (the heart) nor they (the children), but exclamatory. Sono . . . tokoro ga: ga rather than wa particularizes, identifies, points out precisely what. Shi-sen: the highest excellence, summum bonum. Shōshin no jakumetsu: the real Nirvana. Anyō-jōdo: peace pure-land.

Okite: active. Sore: itokenai toki. Miru ni: by the sights that meet the eye. Yusurare: were shaken (as when one is moved without being actually wakened). Ga: consciousness of self. Urotae-dashita: as frequently, dasu added to the stem has the force of 'begin'. Iya . . . jano: as here iya and jano are employed to head and connect a series of examples. Jano to: jano to itte: saying, with such words as these on our lips. Aru to ararenu koto: the imaginary; aru to arayuru koto; all things. To iu mono wa nai: whatever else we may have, we have not that: hence, wa.

is the doctrine of Hell and Heaven taught in Buddhism. I am aware that even in Buddhistic writings there are some passages that explain them as really existent: but there seem to be some passages also that speak of them as non-existent. On the whole which of these (views) are we to accept as correct? Do they really exist? or not?" Ikkyū the Priest looked the samurai straight in the face. "What!" said he, "Is there a Hell? Is there a Heaven? Are you going about asking that sort of thing? What are you anyhow?" The samurai bristling up replied: "I am a bushi to be sure, and I wish to inquire whether Hell and Heaven exist or not. But what of it?" The Priest laughing contemptuously answered: "What! a bushi you say? Are you one of the samurai too? What! If you are a bushi, are you a no-bushi or a yama-bushi? Or, are you a ki-bushi or a katsuo-bushi? If you are a real true bushi, you ought at least to know the duties of a bushi. But it seems that you do not yet know even the duties of a bushi.

"Why! a bushi from the top of his head to the tip of his toe—shall I say? even to life itself, belongs to his master: in no sense whatever is he his own. And therefore in the first place, in time of peace, each one day and night gives his mind to his own duties, and sees to it that his master's business suffers no loss. And when Bah! you bushi not worth your fodder:" and so saying he rapped him over the head with his fan. The samurai flared up: "You chattering priest! I have put up with your talk from the first: and you have vilified me to your heart's content. Even if you are a priest I shall not let you off. Come! say your prayers!" So saying he seized the sword by his side and with a smooth sweep drew the blade. Ikkyū the Priest was aghast. "Look! look! he has drawn. Quick! Run!" And jumping down into the main yard made his escape. And after him escaping chased the samurai, all out of breath, brandishing his icy blade, and calling out "Run as you may you need n't think I'll let you get away." Thereupon Ikkyū the Priest turned about, faced him, and pointing at him in his rage, said "Oh how dreadful! That is Hell! That is hell!" Thereupon the samurai too with an exclamation of astonishment flung down the sword in his hand with a ring, and said "You are right: this is Hell. And so your raillery just now was a device on your part kindly to show me this? The Hell that was not until now came to be the moment I heard your Reverence's passing raillery. So then, whether it exists is uncertain, and whether it does not exist is uncertain: and that it is for that very reason a thing to be really dreaded, I now understand. Oh how grateful I am!" And with eyes full of tears he did his obeisance. Ikkyū the Priest also smiled blandly and said, "Oh! how quickly you have understood: and I too am satisfied. Oh! how glad I am! I am in Heaven. Oh! This is Heaven!"

Such is the story. And was not that a very happy way of putting it?

NOTES.

Bushi: a samurai. The word bushi is retained in the translation because of the play upon it occurring below. Ikkyū: a well known eccentric Buddhist priest of whom many stories are told: he is frequently spoken of as Ikkyū Oshō, Ikkyū the Priest.

Sessha mo: I also, I as well as you, I myself. Oyoso: pretty much. Tenchikan: in the universe. Yō ni omoimasu: feel as if Iwaruru setsu: the doctrine taught. Mototomo: I am aware. Bussetsu: Buddhistic writings. Shik-kari aru yō ni: as really existent. Tokoro: passages. Aru yō ni miemasu : there seem to be. Are : these views. Zentai : on the whole. Iyoiyo : certainly, surely. Jigoku ga aru ka : ga rather than wa is frequently employed in interrogative sentences when the speaker really means to inquire. Is so and so the explanation of a certain fact? or when he really wishes to suggest so and so as likely to serve some purpose. So here the point is not to inquire whether there is a hell or not, but whether the desire to find out that fact was the explanation of the visit. So inu ga iru ka, is there a dog? i. e. is that the explanation of the sound I hear? Empitsu ga aru ka, have you a pencil? i. e. would a pencil serve your purpose? Zentai : any-how. From a priest such a question would have been quite proper; but from such an inquirer as the bushi it was absurd. The reason for Ikkyū's rudeness will appear below. U-mu : aru nai. Nanto itashita zo : what of it? Suppose I am, what then? Bushi ja to : bushi ja to iu ka? Sono hō : you. No-bushi : a no-bushi is an outlaw who follows an army and joins the victorious side. Yama-bushi : a sort of wandering priest who goes about selling charms. Tadashi : mata wa : or: see also page 261. Ki-bushi : a piece of wood, a stick. Katsuo-bushi : dried bonito. Hodo wa : if nothing else, at least that. Sō na : ought, must, one would suppose you might. Shujin no mono de : belongs to his master. Sono hō : jibun. Gwanrai : strengthens the expression : in no sense whatever. Sasureba : and therefore. Mazu : in the first place. Kakezaru : tarinai. Suwa : an exclamation of surprise at the sudden sight or news that the master is in danger : literally, when they say Suwa! Ba zen : before the horse. Mato ni : matō ni shite. Ukauka to : rendered, 'you desert your post.' To : to tazuneru. Areba : suppose they do exist. Se- ken de wa : the world, people : you may not have that opinion but people think so : hence wa. Goku-tsubushi : literally, grain-waste. Koko na : kono. Ga..... : the sentence is not finished : some thing like "get along with you" is understood. Sama : nagara. Sensu : ōgi. Pisshari to : representing the sound of the blow : rendered in the word rapped. Samurai wa : others might have stood such talk from Ikkyū, but this one would not : hence wa. Saisen : senkoku, sakihodo. Iwashite : iwasete : let you say, put up with your talk. Okeba : as frequently, the conditional is most simply rendered by the past followed by 'and.' Akkō zōgon : evil-speak abusive talk : zōgon wo iu. Buttai wo karite mo : even if you borrow a Buddha body, i.e. even if you are a priest. Sonō mama ni wa : literally, as you are : wa suggests the contrast, I may not kill you but I will not let you off. Kakugo seyo : make up your mind : an expression often used by the executioner. The criminal would then say Namu Amida Butsu, and thereupon the sword would fall. Sura to : ma, indicate the smooth sweep, i. e. the movement of the sword ; or it may indicate the gliding sound of the sword leaving the wooden scabbard. Kimo tsubushi : aghast : of course the terror was feigned. Sori ga : there ! look ! Yare : sa ! Nigeyo : let us run : spoken to the boys standing listening. Hiro-niwa : probably the main yard as opposed to the little one enclosed between the wings of the building. Tobi-orite : jumping down. Nigerareru wo : the object of oikake-mawareba. Ikkyū Oshō : Ikkyū Oshō wa : the two men (one cool and the other furious) are contrasted. Ushiro wo furi-muku : to turn about and face. Sono sugata : his appearance, his bearing, in his rage. Sore ga : ga rather than wa identifies :

precisely that. Samurai mo : the samurai also, the samurai as well as the priest : i. e. both now saw the matter in the same light. Kore wa odoroki : (saying or thinking) Kore wa! he was astonished. Karari to : with a ring. Ikasama : you are right. Sasureba : then, and so. Go akkō : now the samurai prefixes the honorific. Kudasarame : kudasarō. Oshō no : like sensei no. Kari no : passing. Kore de koso : for that very reason : i. e. because its non-existence is a dreadful uncertainty. To mōsu koto de gozarimasu : such is the story.

In the family of a certain farmer there was an old woman who wanted to go to Gokuraku. The rice offered every morning to Nyorai Sama she offered calling it o hachi and cooking it by itself. And she kept a separate kama to cook it in, and a shakushi and an oke and a fukin; saying that they were all for the service of Nyorai Sama. The kama and the shakushi she called o kama and o shakushi and o oke and o fukin. Accordingly the whole family, if ever they referred to any thing connected with Nyorai Sama, with over courtesy would say o hana sama and o akari sama and o kōro sama and o buki sama : down to the very zōkin they added the words sama and o.

And that also, if we look at her motives, in reality proceeded from a selfish desire to obtain admission into Gokuraku after death, and without labor to be fed on feasts of a hundred dishes and all for nothing. Nor is that wrong in itself. With that hope before her, provided only she passed through this world with an honest heart, she might be said to be in accord with the mind of the Founders of the sects and with that of Buddha too. But in the case of this family there were no such motives no such intentions. The fact that this world is only a mere temporary lodging place they regarded from a purely selfish point of view: and disloyalty and disobedience to parents and wrong and self-interest they calculated on carrying on as they please. What a wretched idea!

With the passing world,

As with a passing world,

Do not trifle:

The passing world is all

The world you have.

The fact that the sowing of seed for the eternal Gokuraku and the sowing of seed for the eternal Jigoku are both of them laid up in this passing world, and that therefore this passing world is the great world—that fact she regarded from a purely selfish point of view: and so she thought it likely that she might do whatsoever she pleased.

Korera ga mina kano suri-kogi tsukidasu to iu mono yue, Hotoke mo

Accordingly she had a lot of inconsistencies. For example: The taxes paid year by year to the government she would not pay without being dunned five or six times by the local officials and asking to be let off four or five tenths. And yet for the hōga or the kishingoto of the temple, with tears of gratitude in her eyes she was willing to strip the very skin from her body and offer it. Again: on the anniversary of the death of her parents or her husband she would not even fast, putting it on some such ground as that of health; but on the anniversary of the death of the Founder of the sect to which she belonged she fasted, because it was the o something-teenth sama, or the o twenty-somethingth sama.

Inasmuch as it was thus an ill-regulated family, both the daughter in law and the son were self-willed. And if once or twice something happened that did not suit them, they would speak in a loud sharp voice even to parents or husband. And yet the moment they turned to Nyorai Sama, in a soft artificial voice they would say, "Namu Amida Butsu! Namu Amida Butsu! That thou shouldst deign to save such a frail erring one as I, just as I am: how thankful I am! how grateful I am! For their own selfish motives they made a mock of Nyorai Sama.

It is precisely all such things as these that are meant be that suri-kogi worship. And Buddha and the founders of the sects must grieve over them. "Oh!" say they, "Never did I advise, Do wrong thus counting on going to Gokuraku; or be disloyal and disobedient, trusting in the Great Desire of Nyorai. And yet they do me the cruelty (so to represent me)." Verily they weep tears of blood. What an error!

Well, the old woman of that family in washing the rice which she cooked for Nyorai Sama never washed it with her hands. She put the rice in a suri-kogi and washed it with a suri-kogi. And so some man seeing it asked her, "What do you do such a troublesome thing as that for?" Whereupon the old woman replied, "Why! it is the rice for Nyorai Sama: and I can not wash it with my hands." "Why not?" said he. "Because" said she "one's hands are unclean things: no matter how well I may wash them, as some dirt remains under the nails, they are not clean: and so I wash in this way with a suri-kogi." "Well then," he asked, "when you worship Nyorai Sama how do you do?" "Why!" said she, "I put my two hands together." Thereupon the man replied, "That is an unclean thing too. When you worship also you should bring together two suri-kogi." When he said this the old woman was highly indignant, and said that he was a man who talked outrageously; that

Ikasama! dare de mo Kami Hotoke ye mukaeta ryō-te wo awashite go hon no yubi wo soroeru koto wa shitte oru ga: yō mi ni tachikaette miru to, kokoromochi ya mi no okonai wa surikogi awashite oru ga ōi. Nanto! migurushii mottainai koto ja nai ka?

Sore wo koso mukashi no Hotoke ya Soshigata ga fubin ni oboshimeshite, dōzo damashite nari to sukashite nari to, hito ni hito no michi wo okonawashite yaritai to, iroiro no hōben wo o tate nasareta mono ja. Chōdo ameuri ga ame urō tame ni fue fuitari uta utōtai, hamigaki-uri ga hamigaki uritari bakari ni koma mawasu yō na mono ja.

to do such a thing would look out of place to begin with, that it would be very disrespectful to Nyorai Sama; that it would be an act of sacrilege.

And sure enough every body knows about bringing his two hands together and arranging his five fingers when he turns to the Kami and Hotoke: but, if one will carefully reflect, so far as motives and conduct are concerned there is a great deal of putting suri-kogi together. What! and is not that something unbecoming, something sacrilegious?

Out of pity for precisely this, Buddha of old and the Founders of the sects, by all the means in their power whether by hoaxing or by coaxing, desiring to get men to follow the path for men, established various devices. Precisely as the ame seller in order to sell the ame blows his pipe and sings his songs; and the seller of tooth-powder spins his tops, simply because he wants to sell his powder.

NOTES.

Inaka adds little or nothing to hyakushō. Uchi ni: not, 'among the farmers'; but, as rendered, 'in the family of'. Nyorai: see page 253. Goshō-negai: literally, after life prayer. Hachi: literally, the bowl, but here meaning the rice in the bowl: compare the cup for the wine in the cup. Sonaeraruru: sonaeraruru: the potential is employed out of feigned courtesy to the old woman: and as constantly in these sermons the present is used for the past as being more graphic. Ni: here, 'and': the preacher might have said ga. Yō: use, service. Koshirae-oku: to keep. Sono: the. Jano (in Tōkyō dano) iya: often employed in enumerating a list of things. O: as immediately explained the honorific is inserted out of respect for Nyorai. Metta ni: more than necessary, over indiscriminating. Hana et cetera: the flowers, lights, incense-burner, little cups, and cloth to wipe the shelf upon which the butsudan stands.

Sore mo: that too, i.e. as well as other things done by the old woman, e.g. her prayers. Hikkyō: if we look into her motives: compare page 222. Shinda saki de: at, i.e. after death: before death would be shinu saki ni. Yatte morōte: obtain admission. Kuwashite: kuwasete: kuu, to eat; kuwasete morau, to be fed. Ne wa: the root: rendered, in reality. Sore mo: mo implies that other things could be mentioned. Hotoke: here, Buddha; and so usually when followed by such words as kokoro. To iu koto: the fact that. Waga etc-katte: one's own interests.

Mina: here, both. Koso emphasizes what precedes. To iu koto: the fact that. Sore wo: that fact: inserted for greater clearness and emphasis. Ka weakens the statement: rendered, 'likely.'

Kuse ni: and yet: see page 271. Hōga: offerings to a temple such as lanterns et cetera (not money). Kishingoto: contributions in money (or rice). Ki ja: willing to. To yara iute: yara like ka weakens the statement: here rendered, 'on some such ground as.' No: the no preceding ni jū means or: the one preceding to iute is equivalent to nado. To iute: literally, saying that it is: rendered, 'because it is.'

Sono yō ni: thus. Katte no machigōte: ill ordered. So katte no yoi, well arranged, convenient. Kono mi kono mama: just as I am. Otasuke to wa: o tasuke kudasaru to iu koto wa: that thou shouldst deign to save. To: to itte: she says.

Ore wa: others may have done so but not I. No: or. Susume wa semu: more emphatic than the simple negative: rendered 'never.' Ni: here means 'and yet.' Kureru to: kureru to itte. Gozaru: here for oide nasaru. Mayōta mono: not 'wandering ones' but 'error.'

To iu koto wa nai: whatever else she did she never did that: to iu adds little or nothing to the sense. Motte: wo motte. Arawareru: the potential out of feigned courtesy to the old woman. Sassharu: more polite than suru. Toeba: literally, when he asked her. Iwaruru ni wa: in cases like this after verbs of saying et cetera, the force of wa is not unlike that of 'as follows.' O hachi ja mono: mono here expresses surprise: rendered 'why!' Te de wa: she might wash it with something else but not with her hands. Tomatte aru: in Tōkyō, tomatte oru or iru. Many similar examples occur in these sermons. Ogamu ni wa: wa contrasts ogamu with arau: in washing so and so, how is it in worshipping? Ogamassharu: o ogami nasaru: just such language as a man might use in talking to an old woman in the country. Shite wa: if she should do so.

Kami is Shintō: hotoke, Buddhistic. Soroeru koto wa: whatever else he may not know.

Okonawashite : okonawasete. Yaritai to : yaritai to omotte.
Hōben : often pious frauds, here simply devices. Chōdo yō na ; precisely as. The general thought is that Buddha and others have made use of the idea of Gokuraku et cetera simply to induce men to lead a good life.
